Miss M. Will Fly, If Who Will "Own" the Pole?
Ishbell, Lovely Name, Says—
Herriot Is Up Again.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company

MISS M., a young woman, with intelligence, ambition and a rich father, intends to purchase the fastest high power "pursuit" airplane, and learn to run it, herself, if her father will consent. Her name is not published in full, because she does not "want the reporters bothering my father."

It is to be hoped that American young MEN with money and courage will borrow Miss M.'s plan.

"THERE SEEMS to be little worth while for a girl to do, down here, on the earth," says Miss M. "It would be amusing to get up into the air, and try that, for a change.

"You can dress, dance, listen to foolish talk, or annoy poorer people, by meddling with them, and calling it charity.

"But, there is really nothing interesting in modern life for a girl not compelled to work for a living.

"I am told that a woman might run an airplane as well as a man, since it's a question of steady nerves rather than muscle.

"I should like to try it, and I am going to have the fastest machine that can be built, if my father will consent. I wouldn't, of course, do anything against his will.

"There are thousands of young women sick of doing nothing but just exist. If each of them would learn to fly, buy the best machine, and run it herself, you might have an air reserve really useful.

"You would not feel so foolishly useless in the world if you had a hangar on your place and a big plane that you could manage well.

"Think of the excitement and fun, if war should come, getting into your machine and starting after an enemy plane, with a machine gun popping at your elbow. I am a pacifist, theoretically, but I should like that."

THIS YOUNG WOMAN'S plan for making herself useful, in case of need, is recommended to the army of young and prosperous Americans, now showing their high courage on the backs of polo ponies, about 15 hands high, pursuing a little white wooden ball along the grass.

That is good exercise and calls for some courage, but if those young men would ride about 5,000 feet above the ground and learn to follow an invading airplane instead of a polo ball they would find life more interesting.

LET A FEW young American girls set the example, and thousands of young men would follow. Maeterlinck might rewrite his description of the queen bee flying up into the sky, with the "drones following behind.

FOUR NATIONS are racing to reach the North Pole. MacMillan hopes to arrive first, with the American flag and his two warships.

Anyhow, whatever happens in this race, the United States reached the Pole first.

As to "owning" that territory, there need be no quarrel. There is oil there, within the Arctic. The Rockefellers have actually proved it, and produced it, although they do not mean to bring it out.

And as the Pole shifts, and different stars, one after another, become our Northern star, which is not at all "fixed and unchanging," today's polar lands will lose their carpet of ice, men will live there, on fertile fields, and "Polar Night" will be located elsewhere.

BUT WHAT, by that time, will have become of the nations now claiming Polar lands? They will have vanished more completely than the 22 separate kingdoms that met the Conqueror, when he landed in Britain.

And what we call civilization will then be part of a disagreeable past, studied, as we now study the bushmen, African pygmies, and the "head hunters" of Borneo.

WE HAVE with us, just arrived from Scotland, to attend the convention of the International Council of Women, Ishbell, Marchioness of Aberdeen and Temair. You won't often hear a name with a more romantic ound, or meet a woman with more earnest views of life.

This lady tells you that war and our troubles would end if

2 MEN, $4,000 CARGO CAPTURED WITH GUNS IN BUZZARDS BAY RUN

New Bedford, April 23.—Following a thrilling chase across Buzzards Bay, during which a dozen shots were fired by Coast Guard Patrol No. CE-187, a liquor-laden motor boat and two men were captured sixteen miles off this city today.

The coast guardsmen seized 120 cases of liquor, valued at $4,000, and arrested Roy Page and Louis Vincent of Fairhaven. The men were locked up in local police headquarters and the whiskey was taken over by the prohibition authorities. The CE-187, in command of Boatswain's Mate Edward Lindquist, was

RED SOX OUT TO GET TODAY'S GAME

By NICK FLATLEY

The Red Sox, with some of their natural punch restored by the cool Boston breezes, engaged in another mixup with the Athletics at the Fenway today. Two new Fohls, opening at home, displayed enough batting power to make the fans dream of happy days, of a wild ride to glory like the big surge of last Spring.

The punch was missing on several sad occasions, notably in the tenth when a run couldn't be manufactured with three aboard and nobody

WOULD SPANK GIRL DAILY, JUDGE WARNS

One spanking per morning is what nineteen-year-old Mildred Sanford needs, according to Judge Duff of the Municipal Court of Boston.

But, there being no law to the effect that naughty flappers may be spanked, he sentenced her to a year in jail for shoplifting today, and then suspended sentence.

Mildred is a remarkably pretty girl, living on Waverly street, Everett.

Judge Duff is on the sunny side of sixty. He has been sitting on shoplifting cases for a long, long time.

A policeman from the Milk street station arrested Mildred when he found her wandering about on his beat with about $40 worth of merchandise she could not account for.

In court, the girl admitted she had collected the stuff in an unconventional shopping tour.

Judge Duff was severe in his talk to the defendant, and was at pains to point out that her method of shopping was bound to bring her to a bad end.

JAP CONSUL OPENS PROBE OF SINKING

New York, April 23.—The Japanese Consulate-General in New York is obtaining all information possible in regard to the loss of thirty-eight lives in the sinking of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru off Halifax on Tuesday, H. Saito, Japanese Consul-General, said today.

Mr. Saito asserted that officials of the Kokusai Kisen Kaisha, owners of the Raifuku Maru, with the aid of the White Star Line, owners of the Homeric, which arrived too late to rescue the Raifuku Maru's crew, are investigating the affair fully, and are in consultation with the Consulate-General.

Mr. Saito would not say whether

BARS FOIL HER MOTHER'S ARMS

Below is shown Olympia Maeri, New Haven girl on trial for killing her alleged betrayer, John Bagnano, "Bull" of Church street." Above is policeman holding up Olympia's love child, Baby Lucy, in front of the mother's grim prison cell. It was because Bagnano spurned the child that Olympia shot him dead. Her defence will probably be the "unwritten law," and she is confident she will escape the legal penalty of her act—the gallows.

2 BABIES FIGURE IN GIRL'S DEATH TRIAL

By BERT FORD

New Haven, Ct., April 23.—Two babies are central figures at the trial of Mary Olympia Maeri, eighteen-year-old concert singer, who is charged with the murder of her former sweetheart, John Bagnano, as he left the entrance of Church street, which is the "Great White Way" of the college city.

One baby girl is the life long Mademoiselle Lucy Bagnano, aged seven months, and the name of Mary DeOlimpia Bagnano, aged fourteen months.

Lucy Raffaela is the legal son of the murdered man, and Olympia, convicted of murder, directed and planned, closing Lucy Bagnano is his daughter both out of wedlock.

Lucy's appearance in the case explains the motive in the dramatic shooting down in the shadow young Italian Maeri in the lobby of Poli's Theatre on Church street late on the afternoon of February 16 by Lucy's jilted mother.

AUTO THEFT ENDS IN FATAL CRASH; TWO KILLED, ONE DYING

Two men were instantly killed and a third, the driver of the car, is dying as the result of an automobile, stolen on Newbury street, Boston, crashing into the rear of a six-ton truck at High Bridge, on Upland road, Norwood, early today.

One of the dead men was identified as William Crawford, twenty-three years old, of No. 53 Montgomery street, Boston. The body was identified by his brother, Chester Crawford, of No. 1420 Washington street, Roslindale.

The dying man, who was found in a caked condition near the scene of the accident, gave his name as Joseph B. King, twenty-one years old, and single, of No. 31 Waverly road, Newton. He is under arrest on a technical charge of manslaughter.

King, according to the police, is a chauffeur in the employ of E. P. Webster, of Green & Webster,

AUTO WAS PHYSICIAN'S.

Although King told Patrolmen Donnell and Curran of the Norwood police, who were the first to arrive at the scene, that he was not the operator of the stolen machine, the police believe that he was the driver, as their contention

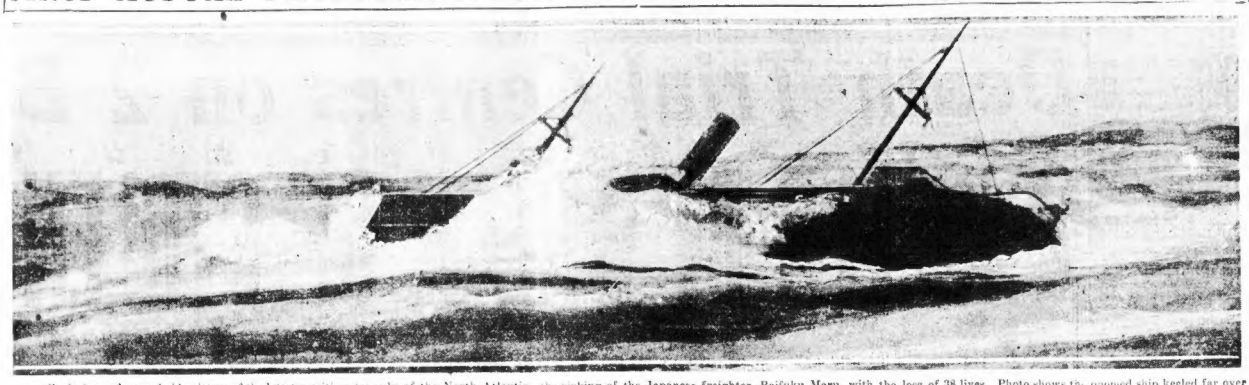
ACCUSATIONS START TWO PROBES IN SINKING OF JAP SHIP

FIRST ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPH SHOWING ILL-FATED JAP LINER GOING DOWN



Exclusive and remarkable picture of the latest maritime tragedy of the North Atlantic—the sinking of the Japanese freighter, Raifuku Maru, with the loss of 38 lives. Photo shows the doomed ship keeled far over on its side just before it took its final plunge beneath the raging, gale-swept seas 400 miles off Boston. A few moments after this picture had been snapped the liner had gone down, nose first, with all on board. The photo was taken by a passenger on the S.S. Homeric, which rushed to the rescue of the sinking craft, but arrived too late to save the imperilled members of the crew. The latter were trapped aboard the foundering ship when mountainous waves battered their lifeboats to bits and made it suicidal for anyone to leap into the boiling waters even when clad with life preservers. The lost ship sailed to her doom after loading grain at the port of Boston. (Photo by International News Reel.)

further steps to investigate the disaster through official channels were contemplated. He also declined to comment when asked whether the consulate official thought the Homeric had done all possible to save the lives of those aboard the Raifuku Maru.

At the White Star Line offices it was said that Captain John Roberts, commander of the Homeric, had made his customary report to the officials of the line and that this report would be forwarded to the British Board of Trade at London which body would have to investigate if any further inquiry into the affair is made.

British Admiralty to Find Truth About Homeric

London, April 23.—The British Admiralty today ordered a sweeping investigation of all the details connected with the sinking of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru off the Grand Banks, Monday, and the attendant part played in the sea tragedy by the White Star Liner Homeric.

At the Admiralty offices, today, there was a general feeling that Captain John Roberts, commander of the liner, had been subjected to unjust criticism for his failure to rescue any of the thirty-eight officers and men of the Raifuku Maru.

With the consternation which has always characterized the official statements of the Admiralty, simply announcement was made that "an investigation is under way."

The British press today carried many dispatches from America, many of them intimating that Captain Roberts failed to do all in his power to save the men on the sinking freighter. Feeling is widespread throughout the British Isles that all the facts in the case of the Homeric and the Raifuku Maru must be ascertained as quickly as possible. In the meantime, public opinion is being suspended and newspapers are refraining from any editorial comment on the tragedy.

Homeric Captain Defended by Priest Aboard Liner

New York, April 23.—The hundreds of passengers on the White Star liner Homeric who witnessed in sinking of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru, with her thirty-eight souls aboard, off the Grand Banks, are scattered to their homes today, and the question of the Homeric's part in the tragedy is still a matter of debate.

CALLS RESCUE HOPELESS.

The Rev. Father Timothy P. Sweeney, pastor of St. Louis' Roman Catholic Church at Fall River, was among the body of passengers who aided Captain Roberts for his action in restraining his men who sought to launch boats in an effort to reach the side of the sinking freighter.

Scores of others among the passengers were of the same opinion as Fr. Sweeney.

SPEEDED TO SCENE.

The only official statement in connection with the tragedy is the terse statement of Captain Roberts, issued today by the White Star line. It is a concise story of the tragedy. The statement follows:

"At 5:47 a. m. (N. Y. time) April 21, in answer to distress message from Chatham, Mass., regarding the Raifuku Maru, our course was altered toward the position given in the message, 111 miles distant. Speed was increased to the maximum possible in the prevailing weather. The wind was north-northeast, with a strong gale and high sea.

"At 1035 a. m. we sighted the Raifuku Maru ahead, distant about two miles, visibility being low with sleet and driving spray. Speed was reduced and all pumped outboard while approaching the Raifuku Maru close to windward. The ship apparently had a list to starboard of about 60 degrees. Men were seen clinging to the rail.

"As the Homeric got abreast of the Raifuku Maru's stern, efforts were made to turn so as to approach the Raifuku Maru's lee side. These failed, and the ship was backed toward the Raifuku Maru's stern. When close to windward of wreck, her keel could be seen when she lurched, and when nearing the lee quarter, much small wreckage, but no life or boat, was seen.

"At 11:13 a. m. the Raifuku Maru capsized, or settled down, while on her beam ends, the sea entering top of funnel, while great seas broke over the ends of the ship. The Homeric continued to pump oil outboard, with lifeboats ready for lowering, and stood by without seeing man or boat, until the Raifuku Maru sank at 11:58 a. m.

"The Homeric again closed on the floating wreckage, but no life, or anything to support life, in that terrific sea, remained. The gale increased in force and the Homeric secured boats and proceeded on the voyage."

PASSENGERS DEBATE.

Spirited discussions, several bordering on the "near fight" stage, took place when the White Star liner Homeric docked.

So indignant were many of the passengers at the failure of the British ship to effect a rescue, that they refused point blank to sign a testimonial to Captain John Roberts, commander of the Homeric. Of the 235 first-cabin passengers, only 123 signed the testimonial.

CONFUTES CAPTAIN.

One of the leaders of the group who took issue with Captain Roberts was Amos Pinchot, lawyer and brother of Gifford Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania.

Pinchot said:

"Captain Roberts' statement that none of the unfortunate sailors of the Raifuku Maru were to be seen struggling in the water as we passed the sinking ship, is incorrect. I saw several men in the water, either swimming or being carried toward the Homeric, but lost sight of them as the big waves swept them towards the stern of the ship.

"We steamed off almost immediately after the Japanese steamship capsized, and a great many people expressed anger and regret that we on the Homeric did not remain a few minutes longer on the scene."

Drowning Men Are Absolved by Priest

New York, April 23.—During the hour that the Homeric lay alongside the sinking freighter, Rev. James J. Talbot, pastor of the old St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Mulberry street, stood in the stern of the Homeric with bared head, praying for those aboard the freighter.

When the ship foundered he gave general absolution for the drowning seamen.

"I have frequently seen death, but that was the most tragic disaster I have witnessed.

"I believe that the Homeric's officers strove heroically to reach the sinking ship, and that it would have been disastrous to risk the lives of the liner's seamen in lifeboats on the mountainous seas," he added.

now lateral off the 70-foot level of the shaft and left it there over night until equipment could be arranged for hoisting the dead explorer to the surface.

Today they attached a hook to a rope, fastened about the body, and raised it by means of a hand hoist. Wrapped in cloth, the body reached the top of the shaft while several score curious visitors watched. After being placed on a stretcher, an improvised sack was removed from the head and W. H. Hunt, miner in charge of the recovery work, asked the spectators to walk past and view the victim.

"Pass by and look at the body closely," Hunt said, "I don't want anybody to go away and say we brought in a chunk wrapped in rags."

One of the miners, J. S. Smith, asked that the group kneel while the Rev. R. H. Neel of Bowling Green, Ky., offered a prayer.

A hearse from Cave City then backed to the scene and the body was lifted inside and taken to town, seven miles away, where it was embalmed and arrangements made to have it lie in state several days before burial services are held.

FIELD AND FOREST CLUB PLANS 4-MILE MAY HIKE

The Field and Forest Club will conduct a May walk on May 2.

Rev. Charles W. Casson of Roslindale, president of the club, is anxious to have at least 1,000 persons take part in the hike, which will be from Forest Hills to Chestnut Hill. Cross-country wood trails will be used most of the way under the leadership of a group of experienced hike leaders, with Frank D. Amsden as chief. Others of the party will include Frederick M. Brooks, C. E. Savell, Dr. A. R. Brown, E. A. Thompson, Frank C. Fogg, Clara M. Page, Edith L. Clark, Florence M. Cutler, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Gildoz and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert H. Harris.

SUIT TO BAR SHIP SALE TO DOLLAR LINE DROPPED

Washington, April 23 (I.N.S.).—The Pacific Mail Steamship Company today abandoned its suit against the United States Shipping Board to prevent sale of five "President type" liners to the Robert Dollar line.

This action was taken when attorneys for the Pacific Mail announced in District Supreme Court that they would not appeal from the ruling of Justice Hitz, who declined to halt the sale by injunction. A temporary restraining order, issued by the court Saturday, expired at the same time, leaving the Shipping Board free to carry out a contract selling the ships to the Dollar line.

RULING WILL AFFECT 7,000 R. R. LABORERS

Chicago, April 23.—Status of 7,000 laborers over 45 years old is involved in a petition filed with the United States railroad labor board by sixty of them formerly employed by the Pennsylvania railroad. The men demand that they be reinstated, avowing that the railroad hired them during the war despite a ruling by it against employing men over 45 years old. The 7,000 affected are employed by railroads throughout the country.

The Budapest newspaper Pesti-naplo today said the British and American ministers in Sofia had intervened and asked the Bulgarian government for more humane treatment of prisoners. The move was prompted, the newspaper said, by rumors of executions.

The Bulgarian government today began immediately to enlist the additional 7,000 militia authorized by the Council of Ambassadors. The minor reservations made by the ambassadors regarding the terms of enlistment were acceptable to the government here.

Coincident with the daylight saving time card further improvement will be made in the service between Boston and Hartford via Willimantic, principal among which is the operation of a new train from Boston at 11 a. m.

The "Colonial" Express for Washington will continue to operate on Eastern standard time, but will be scheduled one hour earlier than at present in order to conform to the daylight saving plan.

the world could be forced to adopt the golden rule, and live up to it.

THE GOLDEN RULE is nearly 1,900 years old, and Confucius' version of it is much older. But since Confucius uttered his negative command, and Christ gave to the world His positive command, human genius and power have been largely and successfully devoted to killing.

In the late great war, ten thousand preachers of the golden rule all prayed for victory—for their side.

The golden rule needs golden human beings to make it real. Make a new race, to live under the old rule, and you will have peace.

No golden rule will keep the wolves from eating a crippled wolf, or "civilized" nations from oppressing a crippled nation.

MR. DEPEW, 91, gives this recipe for happiness and long life:

"Believe in your country, your fellow man and God, and be careful of your diet. The rest of the problem will take care of itself."

YOU ASK, naturally, WHAT problem? What would you add to the Depew prescription, for those that want to do something besides living 91 or 100 years? What about causing your name to be remembered after you have swallowed the last morsel of the careful diet?

How would you go about that? Living to 100 and eating carefully or burning up like Keats, Napoleon or Pitt, and dying, with life hardly begun. Which would you choose?

WALES PUSHED ASIDE AS NEPTUNE RULES SHIP

Aboard H.M.S. Repulse, April 23 (A.P.).—The Repulse, bearing the Prince of Wales on his South American and South African cruise, was halted beneath an almost starless sky to receive Neptune's protests against crossing the equator.

Neptune's part was taken by a lieutenant-commander, attired in robes reminiscent of those worn by the African chieftains received by the Prince during his stop-off in Nigeria, and he was accompanied by a green-clad "daughter of the sea," who is being presented to the Prince today.

Nine hundred novices (those who have never crossed the equator before) are to be received into Neptune's realm.

cruising in the bay, when Motor Boat 62 D was spied running at high speed.

The Federal craft gave chase and Lieutenant ordered the men in the motor boat to surrender. They refused to obey the command, and four blank shots were then fired from the bow gun of the patrol.

They served only to cause the fleeing craft to increase her speed, if anything, and the patrol's gun was then loaded with one-pound shells.

Eight of these were fired, the last striking the engine of the speeding motor boat, crippling it and bringing the craft to a halt.

The coast guardsmen then took charge and towed the motor boat into the harbor.

The men were later arraigned before U. S. Commissioner George E. Lilley, and were held in $1,000 each for a hearing on May 5.

Central Falls, R. I., April 23.—Adeline Dubuque, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Treffole Dubuque, of No. 723 Pine street, is dying in the Memorial Hospital, Pawtucket, R. I., from burns about the head and body suffered while playing near a bonfire.

She was alone in the yard and was amusing herself with a rubbish fire. Her clothing became ignited and in a short time the girl was a mass of flames. Her screams attracted neighbors who extinguished the blaze.

AUGUSTA MAYOR BANS ANTI-KLAN MOVIES

Augusta, Me., April 23.—Taking the stand that, having refused the Ku Klux Klan the use of City Hall for public meetings, it would be unfair to permit the use of the auditorium for attacks on the organization, Mayor Ernest L. McLean cancelled the engagement of the hall for the showing of a motion picture entitled "The Fifth Horseman."

DRINK AND GIRL LEADS AGAIN TO JAIL

Lowrie's Absorbing Story of His Second Fall From Grace After Freedom

Back in prison after nearly fourteen years of freedom, Donald Lowrie wonders "Why?" and he should. Here as he keeps the log, too, top of hammers driving nails into the plain wooden coffin of a convict whose hand he had clasped twenty minutes earlier. While still depressed with the thought—"men are worse than beasts," he is visited by Fremont Older, the man who had urged the writing of his earlier book, "My Life in Prison."

By DONALD LOWRIE.
CHAPTER III.

ARIZONA STATE PENITENTIARY, Florence, Ariz., April 14.—We stood on the prow of the boat. I remember distinctly the fragrance of that night—stars flowering in a deepened sky. And to let one's eyes wander down the reaches of the heavens . . . freedom is an exalted thing.

George felt, too, this joy of release. "There are good fellows shut down there yet," he whispered.

I shuddered. I could feel the sheer walls of San Quentin see the trapped men shuffling into their stone cells—locked up for the night. But I saw it as some nightmare of the past—some dread abode closed now and finally.

If any one had murmured, "You're on the road back this moment," I would have laughed. The muscles of both body and spirit would have tightened in resolute fury. Back to that doom and sordidness? Not I.

The Winter sun climbs above the stone walls, and above these walls it comes to me. I am behind them. Some might say—a dying man who will take his last breath of life from prison air on an Arizona desert.

We reached Oakland. We met George's friend, a short, stubby man with a mouthful of gold teeth and an incessant tongue. The three of us visited George's haunts.

I was introduced to bartenders in the saloons and to all the gilt hangers-on as "the fellow who's writing 'My Life in Prison.'"

The allusion made an instant hit, and a marked deference crept into the tones of the listeners.

Glass after glass of whiskey was shoved before me. I wasn't tempted. I hadn't the slightest desire to drink. Nor did I.

CONTROLLING DESIRE.

I don't want to justify myself. I won't consciously seek to excuse my fall. Perhaps there is and was no excuse for it.

Yet I ought to state that my confidence that night in my own strength was not the outcropping of any false pride or any overrating of my powers of self-control.

I had demonstrated these. At one time during my ten years in San Quentin I existed four years without touching tobacco or eating meat. I like both. Tobacco is the one comfort of prisoned men, and we need all the food allotted us.

But I had come upon the idea that man must gain absolute control of his body before he can hope to attain spiritual progress. In my fervid determination to gain this control I gave up cigaret smoking after more than ten years' indulgence. I also stopped eating meat.

This happened when in a restless search for truth I came upon "The Gospel of Buddha," "The Light of Asia," "The Ancient Wisdom" and other theosophical books.

To one in constant and raw contact with the tragedies and failures of life, the oriental philosophy offered a more satisfying explanation for the cruelties and seeming bitter injustices of existence.

I didn't call myself a theosophist, but I set out with enthusiasm on this new way to the light. I proved to myself that I could master by own flesh and its desires.

I suppose I could have remained my own master. You wonder why I didn't. I'm coming to that.

We had visited some half dozen saloons when it suddenly occurred to me that I was breaking the terms of my parole. I became uneasy and silent. At the next shoddy entrance I drew back.

STAYED BY VISIT.

"What's up?" George asked. "Not going to break away from us this early? First time you've been over to see us, too. Come on up to the room and rest a while. You're done up."

He led the way to a small back room in a second-rate hotel. He left the two of us for about ten minutes, when he returned and with a gratified laugh set a package be-

LOYAL TO 'PARSON'

HUGE U. S. DRIVE AGAINST CRIME

Picture at top is former Elsie J. Tobin, 18-year-old bride of W. E. Stetson, minister, accused of illegally officiating at wedding of his bride's mother, Mrs. Annie E. Wellington (at bottom).

SARGENT AND MELLON FORCES COMBINE

Washington, April 23. (I.N.S.)—The greatest criminal drive in the history of the government is planned by the Coolidge administration through practical merger of all Federal law-enforcing agencies.

Every crime-detecting branch of the government would be rallied into the drive and their combined ranks thrown against rum-runners, dope peddlers and alien smugglers, if a program drafted at the Treasury Department is adopted.

The chief objective would be to erect an impassable barrier on all American border lines. To perfect this gigantic federal cordon against crime Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews has called a conference for tomorrow.

Representatives of the State, Labor, Treasury and Justice Departments will discuss means of co-ordinating the efforts of customs agents, public health officials, Department of Justice agents, immigration authorities and the coastguard service to build a stone wall defense against smuggling.

The program is understood to have the sanction of Attorney-General Sargent, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other high officials.

Under the present system of border protection there is an absence of centralization of effort and a general conflict of authority among the various agencies, an official investigation disclosed.

Favor M. E. Union

Bickford, Vt., April 23.—The Vermont conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today by unanimous vote favored the proposition submitted to the general conference for unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North and South.

Plane Carries Two Pianos to Washington

Washington, April 23.—With two baby grand pianos and six men aboard, the giant Sikorsky biplane, which left the Roosevelt Flying Field on Long Island today, arrived at Boiling Field here at 11:55 a. m., making the trip in three hours. The plane was piloted by Igor Sikorsky, the inventor.

The purpose of the trip was to demonstrate the biplane's freight carrying capacity.

One of the pianos was consigned to Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

Col. Harold E. Hartney, who plans an aerial freight line between Boston and St. Paul, was on board.

MARRIAGES BY SOUTH END MAN INVESTIGATED

Regardless of charges brought against the Rev. William E. Stetson, alleged unfrocked Congregational clergyman, Mrs. Elsie T. Stetson, twenty-year-old South End girl, his bride of a few weeks, has determined to stand by him through his trouble.

Mrs. Stetson is a constant visitor at the Charles street jail, where the pastor is confined after he admitted he had married his bride's mother, Mrs. Anna F. Tobin, to Charles H. Wellington without the authority of the church.

The former pastor, who says he is fifty-one years old, but whom his friends say is much older, shouldered aside Jones, who is twenty years his junior, by the ardor of his suit and won the girl.

On April 4, after filing marriage intentions in Weymouth, he was married to Elsie J. Tobin by the Rev. John L. Trott, pastor of the Central Congregational Church in Chelsea.

When the former pastor announced his intentions of making his home with his mother-in-law in Ivanhoe street, her husband left the premises and roomed away for ten days, intending it as a protest to force Stetson to support his young bride.

EXTRADITION REFUSAL DOESN'T ROIL FULLER

Governor Fuller today declared he is satisfied with the reasons given by Governor "Al" Smith of New York in refusing to honor the extradition papers for Mark L. Gilbert, wanted for larceny in Suffolk County.

Gilbert is under Federal indictments in connection with liquor smuggling and is out on $25,000 bail with the understanding that he will not leave the southern judicial district of New York.

It is realized by the Governor that Federal prosecution takes precedence over State cases.

The Governor understands the refusal to honor extradition papers only as a suspension of his request.

TWO COOING BABIES FIGURE AT GIRL'S TRIAL FOR LIFE

that baby Lucy was the innocent cause of the tragedy. The girl always calls her baby Lucy. She and my relatives refer to the child as "Lucy," which they say is more endearing, but more popular with the family.

Police have not been circumvented nor has birth records of New Haven been tampered with since that date has been considered as "Lucy Bagnano's" birthday.

Jack Bagnano, the victim, had courted Lucy's mother from the time she was fourteen. He was two years older. They wanted to marry when Olympia Macri was sixteen, but the girl's parents are said to have objected to Bagnano, a Sicilian, and Bagnano's parents, in turn, are reported to have opposed Olympia Macri as a daughter-in-law.

At any rate the courtship ended in 1923. Jack Bagnano, whose popularity had rapidly soared in the local amusement world, married a pretty Italian girl from Hoboken and a son was born.

GIRL PLEADED IN VAIN

Seven months later, when a daughter was born to Olympia Macri, her irate father drove her from his home.

Olympia, longing from school days to become an opera star, had been cultivating her voice on meagre savings from her wages as a sales girl in a local store and the better pay which she received when she sang at concerts and amateur performances put on by the Elks and other organizations.

When Olympia was turned into the street, with a little daughter to feed and safeguard, she didn't know what to do.

It was during that bewildered period that she is reported repeatedly to have pleaded with the tall and flashily dressed "Sheik," Jack Bagnano, to provide for little Lucy, and when he spurned her, even to have gone to his wife to intercede for her.

The case teems with human emotions, the kind that a motion picture producer would revel in. It is more gripping than a melodrama of the screen.

Long past the period of interest for a home girl of the type of Olympia Macri, Bagnano, soothe after as a dancing partner and showered with attentions by women and girls, both of them prominent, flippantly turned a deaf ear to the tearful pleadings of the little shop girl and concert singer.

DOGGED STEPS OF "SHEIK"

Olympia Macri's pride was trampled upon. The hot blood of her race asserted itself. She took her father's revolver from the bureau drawer and concealed it in her pocket. She dogged the steps of the carefree Jack Bagnano. Finally she came face to face with him in the theatre lobby and made her last desperate plea, not for herself but for Lucy.

When Bagnano nonchalantly remarked, "I don't bother me I'm busy," and tried to brush her aside he got two bullets in the neck in rapid succession and spectators say the crazed Olympia emptied the gun, firing the last shot as he was prostrate on the marble floor.

It wasn't that Olympia Macri loathed or hated Jack Bagnano. She will tell you now in little chats during recess that he was a fine young man in many ways and that she had loved him.

But Jack Bagnano represented to the little concert singer, a great wrong, the instrument of her betrayal, the slipped cog in a social system, the cause of her loss of home, of name and honor—black despair.

And that is why, as the impaneling of a jury that will say whether she shall go free or will be hanged, was resumed in Judge Avery's session of Superior Court today, two babies loomed as important factors in this real life drama that is being unfolded across the common from the imposing structures of Yale University.

It was learned today that an anonymous letter was sent to Miss Macri. It threatened her with death if she is acquitted. Similar threats were made following her arrest.

Frank J. Beach, a Milford farmer, aged sixty, was the second juror picked at the trial.

Beach, who has two daughters, one of them in college, and the other fourteen, was the thirty-seventh talesman examined. The first juror qualified was Daniel B. Perry, aged 58, a lobster fisherman, who also hails from Milford. There appeared to be slim prospect of completing the panel today.

Only once during the opening day did the girl mother break down and weep. That was when she saw the hundred odd talesmen solemnly file out of the court room after the roll call. At the Gerald Chapman trial in Hartford the talesmen remained in the court room in a body, but at Miss Macri's trial only one talesman is admitted at a time to be catechised. When they went out she in her ignorance of legal procedure supposed they had left to return a verdict.

That illustrated the simplicity of the slip of a girl whose unhappy love affair with a married cabaret dancer and singer who had been her schoolday sweetheart, has brought her within the shadow of the same gallows to which Chapman, the bandit ace, has been condemned. There are times when she resembles a startled deer and again she exhibits the curiosity of a child.

Motorless Plane Keeps 2 in Air for 3 Hours

Istres, France, April 23.—Lieutenant Thoret, French flyer, made a new record in a flight with a passenger in a motorless plane, when he remained in the air three hours and three minutes today.

The former record, which Thoret also made, was two hours and twenty-six minutes in a flight at the Istres Aviation School on January 26.

In August, 1924, Thoret made a motorless glide of nine hours and four minutes with a regulation airplane with motors stopped, establishing a world's record for such a flight without passengers.

TRACTION WAGE PARLEY OPENS IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, April 23.—Representatives of the Springfield and Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Companies and of the Carmen's associations of the two cities held their first conference on the new wage scale in the office of Clark V. Wood, president of both companies.

The unions are asking an increase of approximately $1 for a day of eight hours from the present rate of $5.44 for car operators, with corresponding increases for other employes.

The present contract expires on June 1 and the agreement provides for arbitration if other negotiations fail.

RUSSIANS INVADE CHINA AND BECOME CITIZENS

Seattle, April 23.—China is being invaded by hundreds of Russians, who are taking out Chinese citizenship papers, declared Rev. Daniel McGillicuddy, Catholic missionary from Kanchow, province of Kiangsi, who arrived here yesterday on the steamship President Madison from Shanghai.

"I believe that this invasion is for the purpose of aggrandizement and other nations should watch this movement to protect their interests in China," said Father McGillicuddy.

HOPE AND FEAR SWAYS GIRL AS TRIAL OPENS

Olympia Macri Leans on Counsel as Talesmen Are Questioned

By MAXINE McBRIDE

New Haven, Ct., April 23.—A mute, terrified expression on her eloquent face, Olympia Macri, born American but radiantly endowed by the Italian heritage and named after the lofty realms of gods and goddesses, has passed her first strange new ordeal in the superior court where she faces a charge of murder in the first degree — the first of her sex ever charged with a capital crime in a Connecticut court.

It was a day fraught with terror and dread for the little Italian songster, who silently huddled beside her attorney, Joseph Koletsky. She anxiously searched the faces of the jurors as they were brought up one by one, for cross-examination by the State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling, and her own counsellor.

A handkerchief fell to shreds in her nervous fingers, and her throat quivered noticeably as her gaze constantly flitted from the face of Judge Avery's calm face—always to return to real trustingly on her own attorney.

INTEREST IN JURORS.

"Excused from the case!" Olympia's mouth echoed the words anxiously to Attorney Koletsky after a kindly, gray haired juror was dismissed after expressing his scruples against capital punishment. "Oh, I am sure he would have let me go free."

And again, after Charles Townley of Orange was discharged, on the State's objection, the little girl who is so small that her feet scarcely touch the floor, twisted about in her chair to Koletsky and exclaimed softly—"Oh, I liked him so much, he would have done everything to have saved me, I know."

But there was laughter mingled with the tears of the first tense day of court. Keen Olympia's somber black eyes, that were veiled in tears during much of the session, lighted up when a ripple of mirth spread over the courtroom during seventy-year-old Edward Stebbin's ingenious answer regarding the state of his health—"that he was very well, thank you, and as strong as the best of them."

SMILE IS FOR ET.

Baby Lucy, the tiny mite of humanity, who gleefully raced an accompaniment to the jurors' and attorneys' answers and questions during the morning hours, and who is the nine-checked, dimpled cause of the young mother's gruesome shadowed way, was left at home during the afternoon session.

Olympia's mother, Mrs. Mary Macri, her aloof, pretty Theresa Macri, her father, Nicholas, and the aunt, Mrs. Camilla Mallalli, who has charge of the baby, were in solemn attendance until the close of the session.

A surging crowd, numbering many members of her own race, milled outside the doors of the courtroom throughout the day and formed an almost unpassable barrier to the big sedan that whisked Olympia back to the Whalley Ave. to the New Haven County Jail. She sat between the county police matron, Miss Katherine McGuire, and Sheriff James Geddes.

AID AND SYMPATHY.

Throughout the session Mrs. Joseph Koletsky, wife of Attorney Koletsky, sat beside the police matron and nodded encouragement to Olympia. Her heart and soul are with the young girl, she said.

She is also vitally interested in the fund started in Olympia's behalf by New Haven society women.

The Olympia Macri Fund is promoted by a committee of which Mrs. Sarah Devlin is chairman, and includes Mrs. Emily Ruby and Miss May Carpenter.

The committee has its headquarters in the Whalley National Bank building of New Haven, and money is flowing in generously to add the little singer's cause.

But Olympia has ceased to sing. The light household tasks that have been given her by Mrs. Frank Baldwin, the warden's wife, to relieve the suspense of waiting and watching, are performed without a note from her silvery throat, which in happier days accompanied her busy hands.

Diplomatic Rule Saves Envoy's Aid From Cell

Washington, April 23.—The overnight experiences of Senor Don Jorge Bracud Joffre, attache of the Bolivian Legation, are interesting the capital today.

Police say members of Don Jorge's party were toting a suspicious-looking bottle in a cafe, and that it was offered to a complaining patrolman. It was insisted, according to police, that the policeman eat a sandwich. The insistence became too vigorous. Don Jorge was arrested.

A glass section of a revolving door was broken, inflicting cuts on the officer, who was removed to a hospital.

Don Jorge was freed on a plea of diplomatic immunity. A report was prepared for the State Department.

ENGLAND WELCOMES AMBASSADOR HOUGHTON

Plymouth, Eng., April 23 (I.N.S.)—Alanson B. Houghton, new ambassador to the Court of St. James, who arrived today on the liner George Washington, was greeted by Lord Astor, the Mayor of Plymouth, American Charge d'Affaires Sterling and other embassy officials.

"The warmth of joyous welcome at the very threshhold of England makes me feel I am in the home of friends," the new ambassador declared.

He denied he had brought with him a plan for a second disarmament conference.

Tokio, April 23 (A.P.)—Tokichi Tanaka, former counsellor at the Japanese Embassy at Washington and later vice-minister of foreign affairs and director of the intelligence bureau at Tokio, was definitely selected today as Ambassador from Japan to Russia.

AMERICANS DEFEND PERU ON PLEBISCITE

Washington, April 23.—Members of the American colony at Lima, over the protest of Ambassador Poindexter, have come to the defence of the Peruvian government in its dissent from some features of President Coolidge's Tacna-Arica award. A memorial supporting Peru's contention that the Tacna-Arica plebiscite should be held exclusively under the auspices of the United States was prepared by some members of the colony and forwarded direct to the White House after Mr. Poindexter had refused to have anything to do with it. It is indicated that the President will make no reply.

50,000 YOUNG MEN GOING TO CAMPS

More Than 13,000 Youths Already Enrolled for Training This Summer

What the well-dressed young man will wear this Summer.

Woolen olive drab shirt. Cotton or serge olive drab riding breeches. Wrapped woolen puttees. High tan laced shoes. Wide-brimmed olive drab hat, peaked.

Perhaps not every young man in the United States will be enrolled during the months of July and August, but at least 50,000 youths between the ages of seventeen and thirty-one years will wear just that uniform for the thirty days while attending the forty-two Citizens' Military Training Camps to be held again this year under the auspices of the War Department.

Figures made public in Washington today showed that 25 per cent of more than 12,950 youths have already enrolled for the free health and citizenship requirements, more than double the number of enrollments at the time last year.

The enrollment campaign is under the direction of the Citizens' Military Training Camps officers at the Headquarters of the nine Corps Areas into which the nation is divided by the War Department for tactical and administrative purposes. In the Sixth Corps Area, including the States of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, already one-half of the quota of 5,000 has been obtained; 38 per cent. have enrolled in the Fifth Corps Area, comprising Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, and 36 per cent. in the Fourth Corps Area, including all of the Southeastern States, less Virginia.

EXPENSES PAID.

What President Coolidge himself and leaders in Congress and in civilian life consider one of the greatest movements for real democracy ever instituted in America will get under way in many camps early in July, while other camps open August 1 at Plattsburgh, New York, will have two camps, one in July and one in August.

The necessary expenses of the boy are paid in full by the government from the time he leaves his home, with railroad fare to and from camp, clothing, equipment, food, lodging, bedding and entertainment.

According to reports made available at the War Department recently, enrollment for the 1924 camps has been made comparatively easy by a new factor. Already ninety-five of the biggest industries in the nation have guaranteed to send at least 2 per cent. of their employes to the camps for thirty days on full pay, as rewards for faithful performance of their duties during the year.

IMPORTANT CONCERNS.

Among them are the following: American Telephone & Telegraph Company, American Railway Express Company, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Du Pont Powder Company, Eastman Kodak Company, General Electric Company, J. P. Morgan & Co., New York Stock Exchange, Pennsylvania Railroad, Radio Corporation of America, Standard Oil Company, United States Steel Corporation, Western Electric Company, Western Union Telegraph Company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

The selective draft of 1917 and 1918 revealed that almost half of the young men in America were either defective or unfit for fighting. Out of 2,750,000 young men examined, 46.8 per cent. could not pass the physical test for front-line soldiers.

The youth of today, medical statistics show, is no better, physically, than was his older brother in 1917, but the work of the physical culture experts and doctors at the camps remedies these defects which are not organic. The camps form a vast, free public-health clinic at which these 50,000 youths are examined and treated by experts and given thirty days of health and muscle-building exercises, which last year added an average of six pounds in weight per man to every one of the 16,000 in attendance. Spine curvature, flat feet, malnutrition, faulty posture, flat chests—all of these defects disappeared in a majority of cases.

Fishermen Swarm to Maine

Bangor, Me., April 23.—The ice left Sebec Lake, famous for its salmon pools, today. The essential camps are open and many fishermen have arrived. Schoodic Lake, at Sebois, and Grand Lake, near Houlton, are also open, the earliest in many years.

With the divorce decree granted his wife overturned by the Supreme Court, Wayne C. Holsworth, prominent Needham landscape artist, will now endeavor to collect $50,000 from his mother-in-law, Mrs. Marion Blake Campbell, for alienation of affections.

The suit has been filed by Holsworth and is expected to come before the May session of Norfolk Superior Court.

Meanwhile, it has been learned, the architect will attempt to gain temporary custody of his two children, now in custody of their mother, Mrs. Holsworth, at West Springfield. The mother, on Tuesday, was restrained by Judge McCook of Norfolk Probate Court from taking the children out of the State.

WOBURN SNUBS B. & M. GIRL CANVASSERS

Woburn, April 23.—Women and girl employes of the Boston & Maine Railroad who are circulating petitions in behalf of the railroad company in its fight to block a permit to the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company for a bus franchise through this town, reported today that in many instances they are being treated discourteously as they call upon citizens.

There is considerable feeling in some sections of Woburn over the Boston & Maine and its quarrel with the traction company and this, according to reports of the volunteer petition carriers, is reflected in the manner in which they are greeted.

The employes seek signatures to petitions asking the town council to refuse to grant the franchise of the traction company to operate a bus line which the railroad claims is in competition with the Boston & Maine trains.

MIMIC WAR TURNS U. S. ISLE INTO A GIBRALTAR

Honolulu, April 23 (A.P.).—The Island of Oahu, far-flung Western outpost of the United States and key to the nation's web of defense in the Pacific, has been transformed by the Black forces, defending the islands from an attacking fleet, into an armed camp, it was revealed to a correspondent of the Associated Press today.

Just as the Blue Fleet, which is steaming toward the islands from the East, is sailing under war conditions as far as possible, the army shore defenses have been arranged along lines which would be drawn in defending it against actual attack. The inner defense at Fort Ruger is situated on Diamond Head, known as the Gibraltar of the Pacific. Oahu resembles an area under martial law. Thousands of soldiers swarm about the place. Scout tanks are held in readiness to repel naval attacks. About 5,000 miles of telephone wire are strung. Army and Navy airplanes are circling overhead continuously. Submarines, part of the Black forces, are maneuvering in Pearl Harbor awaiting the Blue Fleet.

RETAIL CREDIT MEN HAVE 'LADIES NIGHT'

"Ladies Night" was observed by the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Jordan Marsh Company recreation rooms, with more than 200 members and guests attending.

Edward W. Manahan, of Manahan, Inc., president of the association, presented Victor D. Day, retiring president, a handsome traveling bag.

The committee in charge of the entertainment comprised Chester M. Critchett, Miss May C. Spain, William Browne, Edwin N. Ray and William J. Starr. Miss Spain was chairman of the ladies' reception committee.

A vote of thanks was given the Jordan Marsh Company for its hospitality in extending the use of its rooms.

THREE CHINESE ARE HELD AS DOPE SMUGGLERS

Three Chinese members of the crew of the Dollar Line steamship President Adams were arraigned before a United States Commissioner today on narcotic and liquor charges growing out of the seizure of seven cans of opium, four cans of other drugs and 35 bottles of liquor aboard the craft.

The men arraigned were Lo Ping, chief butcher of the ship; Soo Wing, interpreter, and Mok Bo, a steward. The opium was hidden in a carcass of mutton, hung up in the refrigerator.

San Francisco, April 23.—A. Wilbert, radio operator at Station 6KW, said today he has been in communication with both China and Japan the last three mornings.

BRIDE'S SUICIDE ATTEMPT IS MYSTERY

Takes Dose in Boston and Albany Station With Husband Nearby

Police are investigating the circumstances surrounding the attempted suicide of Mrs. Helen Curry, twenty years old, of No. 2 Norman Court, Back Bay, who took poison in the waiting station.

With her husband sitting near by, Mrs. Curry is said to have taken a lethal dose of poison from a rolling pocket-case she carried in the main room of the station. Her husband, who was Pvt. [illegible] was said he was her husband.

The young bride, in station attendants had been talking some time with the young woman and quietly got up from her seat and went to the ladies' room. A few minutes later she was found in the main room in a hysterical condition and announced to the man what she had done. The woman is now at the City Hospital, where her name is on the danger list.

Germans to Try Novel Mail Experiment

Berlin, April 23.—The German Franchise Department will permit letters sending out advertisements of articles to a particular class or group of people to hand them to the postoffice unaddressed, and the postmen will be obliged to fervet out the addresses.

A notice or advertisement of special interest to lawyers can be handed to the postoffice in lots of not less than one thousand with the inscription, "To lawyers." The postman will then undertake to hand one copy of the circular to every lawyer of whose name and address he knows. Again, a circular may be labelled, "To the Honorable Wife."

The charge will be about half a cent per circular.

"BUSINESS HESITANCY" DUE TO MERGER PLANS

Washington, April 23.—E. C. Peixotto, vice-president of the Erie Railroad, told the Interstate Commerce Commission today that "business hesitancy" in the Eastern section of the country is due in part to Nickel merger.

Doubt as to the status of railroad consolidation proposals appearing at the hearings on the Van Sweringen Nickel Plate merger plans, he declared, he had found that "business men in some lines are marking time awaiting the result of this preliminary" in the Eastern section of the country is due in part to Nickel merger.

Hasty Pudding Troupe to Invade Gotham Tomorrow

Will Give Smart New Yorkers Triple Opportunity to See and Applaud Show

Betty Alden

HARVARD'S VALIANT Hasty Pudding troupe invades Gotham tomorrow on its Spring jaunt around the theatrical circle, and will give smart New Yorkers a triple opportunity—at matinee and evening shows—to see and applaud "Laugh It Off."

THEY ARRIVE in the Big City, en route to their home town, Boston, fresh from an assortment of triumphs, both stage and social. Literally they took Philadelphia by storm, and Society turned itself out in masse to do the visiting collegians special honor.

AN ENORMOUS invitation ball at the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford, following Monday's performance, was the chef d'oeuvre, at which a representative contingent of Philadelphians, Harvard graduates all, played the hosts.

MANY NAMES of Quaker City consequence appear on the list. There are Messrs. Schofield Andrews, Alexander Biddle, Henry D. Brengle, Robert Kelso Cassatt, Joseph S. Clark, Sidney P. Clark, Percy H. Clark, William M. Elkins, William S. Ellis and Nathan Hayward.

ALSO STEVENS HECKSCHER, George Howa, Percy C. Madeira, 3d, Arthur E. Newbold, Edgar Scott, George F. Tyler, Daniel B. Wentz, Owen Wister, Clement B. Wood and Alexander Cox Yarnall. Warwick Scott and S. Pemberton Hutchinson, Jr., were directing the activity.

Two of the above mentioned men are more than ordinarily interested in the presentation of this year's Hasty Pudding Show, for they have one in the cast. They are the distinguished novelist, Owen Wister, and Robert Kelso Cassatt.

WILLIAM WISTER, whose late mother was Miss Mary Wister, a writer of much note, appears as a well setup chorus man in the contingent which adorns the background of "Laugh It Off."

YOUNG MR. WISTER inherits his histrionic ability, to some extent, for it was the father, Owen Wister, who wrote what is perhaps the Pudding's best theatrical effort, the "Dido and Aeneas" produced way back in the year 1882 or thereabouts.

"TONY" CASSETT, otherwise dignified on the program as "Anthony J. Cassett" of Rosemont, Pennsylvania, is the Robert Kelso Cassett son. He also plays the role of the dashing chorus man.

A THIRD QUAKER CITY youth, Nelson Hesse, one of the numerous star athletes gracing this year's show, is a pretty chorus lady, of the sextet chosen with an eye for feminine-like lines and an ability to wear girls' costumes with sparkle and finish.

EVERY MOTHER of an attractive daughter "out" in society staged some sort of festal affair before the performance, then went on with her guests to the show and later still to the ball which wound up the occasion in the small hours of the morning.

MRS. NATHAN HAYWARD of "Chilton," in Wayne, entertained for her daughter, Miss Nancy Howell Hayward, Dr. and Mrs. Perry Allen of Spruce street gave a dinner for Miss Katharine V. Brown, of Park avenue, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. William Struthers Ellis, of "Fox Hill Farm," Bryn Mawr, entertained for Miss Cintra Ellis.

OTHER YOUTHFUL belles for whom dinners and theatre parties were given were Miss Elizabeth Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Roberts, Miss Nancy Drayton, daughter of Mrs. William Pepper, Miss M. Alice Morice, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Morice of "Ballinor," Chestnut Hill.

STILL OTHER HOSTS and hostesses are Mr. and Mrs. William M. Elkins, of Elkins Park, in honor of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth E. Elkins, the Robert Kelso Cassatts of "Braimer," Rosemont, and Mr. and Mrs. John Penn Brock of Spruce street, for Miss Anne Biddle Brock.

"LAUGH IT OFF" was a "riot" just as Pudding men have predicted. Nothing prettier in the way of "show girls" have been seen on amateur stages than the feminine principals and choruses, and as for the men of the show, they could sing, they could dance, and they were unusually handsome.

AND of individual "hits" there was no end. Perhaps Scott Wilson, as a demurely-garbed little shop girl in the outstanding success of the show, with his dancing. All the Pudding men are full of his praises.

HE QUITE brought down the house with his dancing of the "Charleston" and with his "Slow Burn" tion hits when Harvard "Old Grads" gathered at the Pudding Clubhouse in Cambridge for the Dress Rehearsal of the show, preceding its various public presentations.

THE FIRST ovation har been followed by similar enthusiasm in Newark, before Princeton men and their friends, at Northampton for the Big Smith College girls, and in Philadelphia.

EQUALLY WARM appreciation fell to the feminine headliners, Andres Carillo of Havana, Cuba, and Courtlandt Sherrington Gross of West Newton.

"SHERRY" GROSS, who was a St. George, Newport, school boy, has played many girl parts in school days. He is a beautiful "blonde" lead, and shares feminine honors with Senor Carillo, a "brunette" of the flashing-eyed Senorita type.

BOSTON AWAITS the return of the Puddingers with much excitement. The town performances are scheduled for the Fine Arts Theatre on the evenings of April 28, 29 and 30, and of course the patronage is of the smartest.

Miss Anna Hall of the Vincent Club, which is still glowing with the great success of "Fez." Miss Hall, like all her sixty or more fellow performers, played many parts in the Club's Spring theatrical production.

COOLIDGE MAY ATTEND CONFERENCE IN MAINE

Washington, April 23.—President Coolidge has taken under consideration an invitation to attend the conference of State Governors at Poland Spring, Me., June 29.

Governor Brewster of Maine extended the invitation. The President probably will be in New England about that time on his vacation.

CARNIVAL OF MUSIC AT STRAND BALLROOM

A "Carnival of Music," with three dance orchestras, will feature tonight's assembly at the Strand Ballroom, 177 Huntington avenue. The rivalry organizations will include Jimmie Agnew and his Peppermint Boys, George Tynes and Edward Dois' Singing and Dancing Orchestra from Lakeeroft Inn, and Bert Fandel's Jazz Instrumentalists. Many soloists will intersperse vocal melody with the music of the orchestras. Among those will be Helen Tierney, Jack Keefe and John Fay. Performers from local music publishing houses will also take part.

Wife Deserter Sentenced

John H. Conley, who deserted his wife and children, was sentenced by Judge Bishop in the Superior Criminal Court to the State Prison for seven and a half years.

MEXICO LAUDS HEARST GIFT OF LANDS

Publisher's Development Plans Seen as Boom by Government

Mexico City, April 23.—The action of William Randolph Hearst in co-operating with the Mexican government to help settle the land problems in the State of Chihuahua was highly praised today by Secretary of Agriculture Luis Leon.

Secretary Leon announced that portions of the land owned by Mr. Hearst at Bavicora, in the State of Chihuahua, will be taken over by the government to form Ejidos, or village commons, for the towns located near the properties. He said the lands had been offered by Mr. Hearst and that the government expects no difficulties in securing the parts of the land needed for the Ejidos, and that a serious problem has been solved by the arrangement.

"Mr. Hearst's attitude cannot be praised too highly," said the Secretary. "He has repeatedly offered the lands needed."

When confirming the plan Mr. Hearst, however, asked the government to take quick action so that the limits of the Hearst properties may be established in order to start an intensive campaign to spend large sums to develop the properties.

Secretary Leon stated that the action of Mr. Hearst would be followed by other land owners and the land questions of the government would thus be settled without difficulty.

The Department of Agriculture is making a commission very shortly to establish the limits of the Ejidos. As a result of the division of the Hearst properties and the development of the Hearst ranches that Secretary Leon trust the State of Chihuahua will again take its place as the leading agricultural and cattle State of Mexico.

AIDS IN SALE FOR BOSTON BLIND

The Boston Committee for the Blind is conducting a two-day exhibition and sale of products made by blind persons in the vestry of Temple Israel on Commonwealth avenue. Three of the women who aided in the sale are (left to right) Mrs. Elsa Hart, Miss Selam Pelonsky, and Miss Jessie Goldsmith.

STATLER OPENS DEAL FOR HUB HOTEL

The project for the erection of a modern Statler hotel of 1,500 rooms in the Park Square section has been revived with the arrival in Boston of Ellsworth M. Statler, head of the Statler organization, and F. A. McKowne, treasurer of the Statler Hotels Corporation.

The two men are in conference with a number of a real estate dealers and financiers and as a result, announcement is anticipated of the completed plans for a $10,000,000 hostelry which will be the finest hotel in New England.

The plans have been under advisement for some time but owing to high building costs the contract has not been let.

Some time ago the Statler interests purchased from the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad company a parcel of land bounded by Columbus avenue, Arlington street, St. James avenue and Providence street, a site somewhat larger than that occupied by other leading hotels here.

An unusually large piece of land, however, is required for the proposed hotel because of the building code, which limits the structure to twelve stories.

At the present time the Statler interests have obtained title, by purchase, to all the land in the irregular triangle formed by Columbus avenue, Arlington and Providence streets, with the exception of the site occupied by the Park Theatre and the vacant lot at the tip of the triangle. These properties would increase the area of the Statler site to more than 78,000 square feet.

WORKMANSHIP OF BLIND ON EXHIBITION

The Boston Committee for the Blind, of which Mrs. Hyman Freidman is chairman, has opened its two-day exhibition and sale in Temple Israel vestry on Commonwealth avenue.

The first day proved highly successful financially. Returns were many and fast as philanthropic women expressed their sympathy and support in dollars and cents. At 10 o'clock tonight all the receipts will be in and the sale will be ended.

Aside from this phase, demonstrations carried on by the blind themselves, showing how almost every department of industry is mastered despite their handicap are interesting and fascinating. Those devoted to the making of brooms, towels, mattresses, rug weaving, basket making, homespun and other practical articles.

Although considered a non-sectarian organization, the Boston Committee for the Blind is made up of Prominent Jewish women. The committee includes Mrs. Hyman Freidman, chairman; Mrs. Louis Rosenbaum, assistant chairman; Miss Jessie Goldsmith, Mrs. Isaac M. MARSTERS TOURS, 248 Wash'n St.

EAGER, enthusiastic woman after eager, enthusiastic woman welcomed our representative when they learned he had ready their precious "savon de toilette"—Lux Toilet Form

The Framingham women want more

They weren't content with the single cake to try . . . they take 2 or 7 or 10 . . . and then come back for more

THEY'D waited and waited for it—the women for whom we made this new, different toilet soap!

They'd written and written us—

"Do make us a soap as fine, as exquisite as French soaps! We want a soap to use every day that we will love like imported soaps. We know you can make it—you made our marvelous Lux."

Then Lux Toilet Form was introduced to Framingham!

Our own representatives took it there first to see what women thought of it.

That first day. . . .

The women in Framingham weren't content with the single cake we offered them to try!

"I'm giving it to my friends" one woman prefaced her fifth eager order.

"My wife wants to have plenty on hand"—that man tucked 18 cakes under his arm.

One important store took 100 cakes for a trial order—they sold every one that day! Now they order by telephone to get it fast enough. Another sent a hurry call for 500. Still another for 700. "Can you deliver to us by motor—quick?"

Those eighty stores in Framingham "to" which we took Lux Toilet Form—in eighty different ways they told us the same thing! It's wonderful—but then it's what women wanted—"un vrai savon de toilette"—Lux Toilet Form!

Satiny, fine-textured, smooth—Lux Toilet Form is made by the method France uses for her finest toilet soaps. This makes Lux Toilet Form firm, solid, lasting. That is why Lux Toilet Form wears and wears so long!

Fragrant, magic lather from this new delicious soap!

You know how French soaps make you feel—luxurious, satiny-all-over—that's why you used to pay extravagant prices for them! Intangible—but oh, so real—the satiny, caressed, delicious feeling Lux Toilet Form gives your skin. Somehow, you feel charming—more exquisite!

Slip it out of the dear lavender and white wrapper—here it is, the exquisite "savon de toilette" you asked for—Lux Toilet Form! Firm, lasting—all the family can delight in it for both toilet and bath. Your druggist has Lux Toilet Form, your department store and your grocer. Ask for Lux Toilet Form today. Ten cents. BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

When you listen in on WNAC tomorrow at 10:40 for the WNAC-Boston Evening American Club Talk you will get home hints from Jean Sargent and hear Martha Lee's fish chat.

BEST BETS FOR THE RADIO LISTENERS

This great country was founded three hundred years ago by men and women who sought to worship God in freedom. No human being without faith could have braved the perils of the unknown wilderness in whose stark and inhospitable edge they clung with undying courage. This nation—like every great thing that has ever existed, is built upon faith—faith in God, faith in Man, and faith in the Future. Its foundations are grounded in faith and its progress is carried on by it.

That faith is there for those who look for it in the vast overlying turmoil of modern life. It is a still small voice amid all the racket of steam riveters and gasoline exhaust pipes. But it is there.

It is audible in the programs of those broadcasting stations which are most in touch with the real needs and desires of people's lives. The stations that have succumbed to commercialism to the extent of filling up their time with advertisements are a different story. But the stations that express the wishes of the people who listen to their programs do not overlook the great element of human life that is expressed in worship. The Bible Readings with which station WNAC begins the day, the noon services from King's Chapel over the same station, the Morning Watch a short service in the early morning over WEEI, are all inspiring addresses given enthusiastic credence.

And one of the agencies which is helping to break down the antedated barriers that have stood between people who worship the same God through different creeds, is the radio. There's an old French saying "To understand all is to forgive all," and it is lack of contact that makes misunderstanding, with its attendant prejudice and hatreds. Through the agent of radio, the air over this great country of ours is full of man's worship of God. And let the glooms and crape hangers and calamity howlers take note of this. Let them listen in on Sunday or let them see the thousands of letters of appreciation that come in response to the morning prayers that are broadcasted on week days. Broadcasting stations don't put things into the ether unless people want them there. Let the calamity howlers who spend their breath in diatribes against jazz please take note of these facts.

A radio receiving set makes no distinction between Presbyterian or Baptist, Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile. It takes out of the ether intact the aspiration of man's soul toward something bigger and better and more lasting than himself, that is in all worship, whether it be of Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant. It gives it intact to the listeners, whether he be Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, Presbyterian or Baptist. And the broadcaster realizes the sincerity of the aspiration, and the differences of dogma crumble before that realization. That is how radio is bringing to thousands and hundreds of thousands of people who believe in one creed a knowledge of the sincerity of aspiration in other creeds — a knowledge which makes impossible the prejudices and hatreds that are based on dogma.

We wish that some of the calamity howlers who mourn over the unregenerate youth of America could have been in this office last Good Friday at noon, when the laboratory receiving set was recording the services that were taking place that day. A messenger boy rushed into the office for the editor's desk. He was a tough guy—that messenger boy—and he was in a hurry. But half-way across the room he caught the words from the loud spreaker—the greatest words that were ever spoken—whose infinite forgiveness has echoed down through two thousand years—"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." He stopped short and pulled off his cap, and stood there a minute as if he were in church—which, as a matter of fact, he was. Then he delivered his message, got a receipt, and left for the next job. That was young America—that tousled messenger-boy — and he is worth about nine million calamity howlers.

Editor, Boston Evening American

You can believe Mr. Williams—

When he writes about government and politics—which is, or should be, "the science of government"—about the Army and the Navy and the Air Service; about American foreign policy; about world affairs and national affairs, about people and events here and elsewhere—because Mr. Williams writes always with sincerity and truth. His acquaintanceship extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific; from Canada to the Gulf.

When he discusses the problems of Boston and Massachusetts, of Augusta and Maine, of Concord and New Hampshire, of Montpelier and Vermont, of Providence and Rhode Island, of Hartford and Connecticut—of New England as a branch of the great family that is the Nation—because Mr. Williams knows New England and the Nation.

You can quote Mr. Williams—

With credit to your own judgment and with influence upon your neighbor, if you buy and read every day the Boston Evening American, because Mr. James T. Williams, Jr., is the editor of the Boston Evening American—a paper published not for Republicans, Democrats or Independents, but a paper published for ALL the New England people.

TWO MILLION BUSHELS OF GRAIN LOST

Corn and Oats Destroyed in $2,250,000 Elevator Fire in Chicago

Chicago, April 23.—More than two million bushels of corn and oats, belonging to the Grain Marketing Corporation were destroyed in a fire which started shortly before midnight, burning two wooden elevators and threatening an industrial section on the South Side before it was subdued early today.

The loss is estimated at $2,250,000 by Emanuel F. Rosenbaum, president of the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation, through which the elevators were leased to the Farmers' Co-operative Organization. Destruction of the grain he estimated at $1,500,000 and of the structures, among the oldest wooden elevators here, at $750,000. The losses were covered by insurance, he said.

Nearly half of the fire fighting force of the city was called. Sparks and burning brands started fifteen small fires in the vicinity and heat was so intense firemen were unable to get within 150 feet of the burning structures.

TO PROROGUE LEGISLATURE NEXT WEEK

Prorogation by next Thursday is the mark set for the legislature by Speaker John C. Hull of the House and President Wellington Wells of the Senate.

In line with this attempt to make a record for a short session, a bill increasing the salaries of the judges, registrars and assistant registrars of probate in all counties excepting Dukes, Nantucket and Suffolk has been added to the long list of matters deferred for another year.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommends that the salaries and a system of entry and other fees be investigated by a special recess committee.

The early prorogation plans were today criticised by several members of the upper branch.

According to one Senator the record of the present session is the best argument for a return to the annual system of meetings.

He complained that important matters are being acted upon with such speed that the members are bewildered with the result that they are in no position to judge intelligently upon the merits of the bills presented.

Speaking of his native England he said: "My country interprets history in the terms and analogy of a cricket match or prize fight." He said the Quakers are the most important religious group for its size of today.

The new Sunshine Soda Cracker

WHEN they must eat—and often at the wrong time—let them have this healthful cracker. Be comforted by the fact that it will not take away their true meal-time appetites and yet relieves the gnaw—and they do suffer you know.

This new Sunshine Soda Cracker supplies them with the energy that they need toddling or romping. It is fuel that their little speed motors require.

Made in a new way by the Full Grain Process

If baking isn't an art, fallen cakes and heavenly pie crust couldn't come from the same cook. Uniformity is the key to all successful baking. You get the process right, and then hold it, no matter what the conditions are. The "how" of this is the real difficulty. In baking the new Sunshine Soda Cracker, it means:

Special temperatures strictly held, no matter what the weather;

A brand new way of working the dough so that it can't possibly toughen;

A different method of cutting the biscuit;

Most careful watchfulness at the ovens;

Just the right percentage of gluten in the wheat.

The outcome of this process is a new kind of soda cracker, full flavored, rich, and of fine texture.

The flavor of this cracker owes much to its shape (patented). The notched sides form easy holes in the sheet of crackers as they bake.

This assures through and through baking. In addition this cracker is more convenient to eat—doesn't crumble and can readily be split in two.

fine me. "This is what you need, old fellow. It's twenty years old and a million of it won't hurt you. A good stiff drink will set you up."

I watched without excitement as he pulled the cork from a quart bottle of bonded whiskey.

"Come on!" George coaxed. "They're working you to death over here. Cohen's playing you for a sucker. First thing you know you'll be down and out. I suppose you know the resolution of Cohen's pal—we have pinned about twenty of thirty thousand since you started writing for it. What'll you get out of it? When you're through they'll dish you like a lousy burn off a de luxe Pullman. Those capitalists are all alike. Best thing is to look out for yourself."

I was heart and soul in the writing of my serial and could hardly have stopped had I wished. I liked and deeply admired my employer. I turned from George's talk with a feeling of anger and contempt.

I was about to leave with the whiskey untasted when the half open door framed a picture—the picture of a girl. I see the bright head thrust impetuously into the smoke filled room; see yet the red, parted lips and the milky throat lost in the folds of a lavender negligee.

She laughed and immediately I seemed hearing a long silent music. Of course, I should have grabbed my hat and bolted.

"Hello," the girl was saying. "How about that show you were taking me to tonight? It is nearly 8:30 now." She saw me, staring and mute. "Oh, I beg your pardon! I didn't know you boys had company."

A swift little hand caught the chiffon thing more completely about her slender form. She laughed. I saw teeth white and perfect; saw the color spring to her cheeks. She seemed beautiful to me. I wanted to move toward her—touch her hands.

Then the other man said, "Come in, Stell—this is Mr. Lowrie. You know—the guy's who's writing that prison story in the newspaper."

"Donald Lowrie? Are YOU Donald Lowrie?" She was coming toward me, both hands extended, her eyes glowing.

I felt suddenly rich—exultant—a conqueror. The clasp of her fingers went racing with a soft tingling fire along my nerves. For the first time in better than ten years a young, attractive woman was looking at me with warm, approving gaze. For the first time in ten years a soft, small hand rested appealingly in mine.

"It's wonderful. I can hardly wait for the chapters. But I certainly never expected to meet the author. I'm thrilled!"

I was finding it hard to breathe. I was still staring into her upturned eyes. I wanted to put my arms around her—keep her standing there before me.

And suddenly she was raising a glass, her fingers touching my lips.

"To me," she whispered softly. I wanted to shout. I was reckless with the tumult of this sudden emotion that had struck with the swift fatality of lightning. I laughed. The whiskey tore in a flame down my throat.

A moment later I was choking for breath. Tears sprang to my eyes in my efforts to appear unaffected. It was my first taste of alcohol in a decade. It proved a cruel baptism.

"You needed that! Best thing in the world for you, old man," George grinned. "You'll be stepping high in a few minutes."

I scarcely heard. My thoughts and eyes were on the girl. She had now seated herself on the couch. The other man put his hand on her shoulder.

I watched, stifled and unhappy. I wanted her to return—look at me again—hold another glass to my lips—anything to end the fire that was already consuming me.

She happened to look up. Perhaps there was anguish as well as demand in my glance. I know that I felt both—that I was now utterly heedless—utterly mastered.

She came over smiling. She held one glass while I emptied it—then another.

I felt gigantic—a king. The room swayed a little, but it was a joyous, rhythmic sway. Through the blue mist of a hundred cigarettes Estelle's face glowed—for me.

"Go! I must be leaving—" The warning whispered to me from the remnants of my self-control. I knew that I could stand no more whiskey.

I rose unsteadily, fearful that I couldn't walk straight. "Not used to booze," I apologized gallantly. "Can't afford to have it show in public."

"But you're feeling fine, ain't you?"

I was and I said so. George offered to accompany me across the bay. This seemed extraordinary magnanimous.

As I reached for my hat Estelle seized it and set it on my head, her soft, lithe hands touching along my cheeks.

"Don," she whispered, her breath in my face, "come again, won't you? Come again and see me. You will?"

God knows how an average man might have answered that invitation. But for ten years my thoughts and instincts had been flogged into grooves of abnormal—I had almost said unhealthy—restraint.

FIRST STEP ON ROAD.

On the boat ride home and in the hideous later hours of that night Estelle's eyes kept glowing into mine; Estelle's soft murmur, "Come again, won't you?" echoed with unbearable want and torment in my thoughts.

I sat in my room after George left me. A cold moisture kept mopping about my hair, yet there was an overwhelming heat in my brain.

I kept seeing the girl's face, feeling her hands—wanting to see and to feel them though they tortured.

And finally I couldn't bear it. I went out and began walking up hills and down them. I was depressed and bitterly regretful the trip to Oakland one moment. I was defiant—full of challenge the next.

Hadn't I a right to a woman's smiles? I'd been denied them long enough!

Other men seize joy. Was I compelled to stamp out every natural impulse?

I grew quite wild with these angers. I flung myself along in a hostile rage.

And I forgot utterly all that long zeal for self-control; I grew scornful of those lean years of terrible restraint. Before that walk was ended I was standing arrogantly before the bar of a saloon swallowing glass after glass of whisky.

Yet all this while my brain was clear. I knew that I ran grave chances of arrest for violation of my prison parole. I became wholly careless and defiant.

The morning brought a cold, sick revulsion. I would never cross the bay again. I would resolutely avoid temptation.

Estelle phoned. Her voice brought the image of the bright, shapely head before me. Then she laughed. I know how her lips were looking and her small perfect teeth. I felt her hand sending a fire through my veins.

"Come over," she said.

I went—went gladly—feeling myself a man as other men. When she put her hands to me. I folded my arms hungrily, swiftly about her.

There was no thought of denial in me now. That was a mood of the past.

I yielded—with abandon—completely. And I suffered no remorse.

Without realizing it, in taking those first drinks of whiskey in George's room and in letting my eyes drink in a slender girl's appealing charm with no thought of her spirituality or mine, I had taken two definite steps on the road to ruin.

The third was in that Oakland hotel room, more than twelve years ago, that I started on the long, tragic, intense journey back to bolts and bars and degradation.

Go on with this absorbing story of a man's descent into Hell, tomorrow in the Boston Evening American.

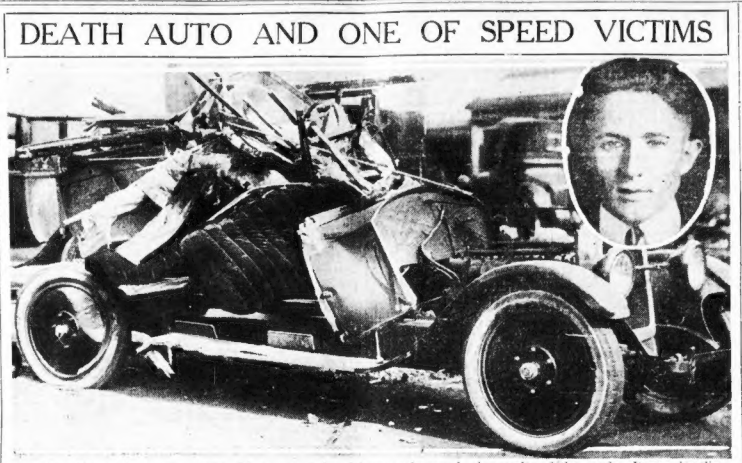
DEATH AUTO AND ONE OF SPEED VICTIMS



Some idea of the speed at which this car was being driven can be seen in the results of the crash. It was hurtling through Upland road, Norwood, when it struck a six-ton truck with force enough to push it backward 150 feet. Photo is William Crawford of Boston, one of the two killed. The car was the property of Dr. G. S. Derby of Hereford street, and when the men stole it they put on different number plates.

Mrs. F. Y. Dalziel Didn't Play Golf in Bare Feet

Frederick Y. Dalziel of No. 15 East Seventy-seventh street, New York, today denied to the Boston Evening American that his wife, society leader and big game hunter, had inaugurated the fad of playing golf at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., in bare feet.

The story, telegraphed from New York was published by the American on April 11. It stated that each day, after luncheon, Mrs. Dalziel while at the resort took a brisk jaunt over a nine hole course in her bare feet, seeking the benefits said to accrue from walking unshod on grass.

TWO KILLED AS AUTOS CRASH IN NORWOOD

is that the men killed were riding in the rear seat.

The automobile which figured in the accident was the property of Dr. George S. Derby, of No. 7 Hereford street, Boston. The machine was left by Dr. Derby in Newbury street, near Hereford.

The machine, which was demolished, had stolen number plates when the police arrived.

King told the Norwood police that the men killed were strangers to him, that they picked him up in Tremont street, Boston, and asked him to go for a ride. This was shortly after 11 o'clock, he said.

According to King the car was traveling along Upland road, which is a concrete thoroughfare, and which has been the scene of many accidents, in the direction of Boston. He said they were travelling about sixty miles an hour, and were going up a steep incline. When High Bridge was reached, a six-ton truck, also going towards Boston, came in sight and, before the sedan could be brought to a stop, had ploughed into the rear of the truck, the impact throwing the truck a distance of 150 feet.

EXONERATE TRUCK DRIVER.

The driver of the truck aided the injured party. He telephoned the Norwood police, who responded with the ambulance.

Medical Examiner Arthur S. Hartwell of Norwood was notified and he reached the scene shortly after the accident. He ordered the bodies removed to Gillooley's undertaking parlors in Norwood.

No blame was placed on the driver of the truck, who continued on his journey after he gave assistance to the injured.

The stolen registration plates on the stolen Studebaker machine had the registration numbers 437842, which were taken from the machine of an East Boston woman early in the evening.

The driver of the truck was Wilfrew Maheu of North Attleboro.

PULLMAN CO. PLANS TO OPERATE AIRSHIPS

Chicago, April 23.—Plans for the construction by the Pullman Company at Pullman, Ill., of fleets of all-Pullman airplanes for service in transcontinental commercial flights have been revealed by Peter Parke, chief engineer of the company. It has been decided, Parke said, to operate the planes along the same lines as Pullman sleepers are used in railroad traffic.

NUTMEG TEAPOT TEMPEST NOW SUBSIDING

"Tweedledum and Tweedledee were going to have a battle,
For Tweedledum said Tweedledee did steal his nice new rattle."

—Through the Looking Glass.

The tempest in a teapot, as the alleged slighting of Governor John H. Trumbull and other members of the Connecticut delegation to the Concord-Lexington celebration has been called, was subsiding today.

Despite reports to the effect that sweeping apologies would be demanded, as far as could be learned no official protest has been made, and apparently Governor Trumbull has studiously refrained from such action.

The whole affair has been set down by those in a position to know as an unfortunate misunderstanding, and it has been pointed out that continued controversy is one of those things that block progress in New England.

Local authorities today felt that nothing could be gained by continued agitation of the regretable occurrence, while on the other hand the bickerings and recriminations must have a deleterious effect on both States.

NAVY'S ANTI-AIRCRAFT AIM AND GUN BETTER

Washington, April 23.—Through intensive training, the Navy has not only increased the efficiency of anti-aircraft fire, but is on the threshold of ordnance developments in anti-aircraft guns expected to increase the range, accuracy and effectiveness of such fire.

A new five-inch weapon, representing a considerable advance over the present 3-inch gun, has reached an advanced point of development, and a number will be installed on the Battleship Maryland this Summer.

She will also be given a system of fire control for the guns.

GERMAN CAMPAIGN TO BE RADIOED TO WORLD

Berlin, April 23.—To enable not only all Germany, but also the world, to hear the campaign speeches of the two principal candidates, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and Dr. Wilhelm Marx, tomorrow, the Ministry of Posts has arranged to broadcast on a wave length of 1,450 meters, with a sending apparatus of five kilowatt capacity.

Hindenburg will speak in his home at Hanover, at 8 p. m., Berlin time, or 2 Boston time, and Dr. Marx at 9:30 p. m. (or 3:30 p. m.), from Nuremburg.

BAFFLED POLICE SEEK FIEND IN GIRL MURDER

Hope Identity of Brutal Slayer Will Show Who His Victim Was

Chicago, April 23 (I.N.S.).—Baffled in every effort to identify the young woman whose headless body was found in a "lovers' lane" near the Budlong Golf Links, Police Captain Martin J. O'Malley believed today that the answer to the riddle might be reached by going the other way about and identifying the murderer himself.

"We have some definite information about the fiend who committed this crime," he said. "The crime may identify the criminal.

"This evidence alone gives extremely important information about the brain and soul of the murderer. It tells us his psychological type, and that type fortunately is rare. It enables us to narrow our field of search.

"We want a man of such moral and mental type as could conceive and then commit the crime. Therefore, we are not looking for a normal man; we are looking for one with fantastic but definite abnormalities. When we have found him we shall learn through him the identity of his victim."

Captain O'Malley and his aids spent the day seeking additional physical evidence, but found little. Sewers connecting with the catch basin into which the body with head, arms and legs missing, had been thrust, were searched and raked for a half-mile or more, but in vain.

PROFESSOR REISNER RAPS EGYPTOLOGISTS

Evanston, Ill., April 23.—A spirited rebuke to American and British Egyptologists who recently have charged the Egyptian government with mercenary and ungenerous regulation of historical excavation projects in the Nile country was delivered at Northwestern University by Professor George A. Reisner, chief of the Harvard-Boston projects in Egypt, in the course of a lecture on the recent discoveries at Gizeh.

Dr. Reisner asserted that in his opinion the intentions and designs of the Egyptians had been grossly misinterpreted to the United States and England.

SEEK BETTER WORKING OF MEXICAN BORDER LAWS

Washington, April 23.—Representatives of the departments of state, justice, labor and treasury have been called to meet tomorrow to discuss a plan for better coordination of Mexican border law enforcement. Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury is understood to favor the use of all government agents on the border, regardless of their branch of service, in the enforcement of laws.

The HOOVER
It BEATS . . . as it Sweeps as it Cleans

Eliminates Laborious House Cleaning

The Hoover does not concern itself with the surface dust only. When a rug is cleaned regularly by the Hoover the heavy dirt that settles down into a rug is beaten out, the dirt that sticks is cleaned out, the dust is swept away.

This is because the Hoover alone among sweepers has a brush, rotating a thousand times a minute, right at the point where the suction is applied.

Plain Facts Not Fiction

By JACK CONWAY

It is always interesting to read stories about Jim Maloney. South Boston heavyweight, especially when they contain at least 10 per cent. of true statements. Maloney is a splendid type of athlete and everybody is rooting for him to win the heavyweight championship.

Some of the press copy published in a certain morning newspaper about Maloney would do credit to the pen of Horatio Alger, Jr. First we had Maloney going to England, where he was to get a purse of $25,000 for fighting. This story was pure, unadulterated bunk as Jim Gerney would say.

Next we had the brilliantly written story of Jack Kearns' trip to Boston to sign Maloney. Very interesting, if true. Kearns never offered Maloney $20,000 to go with him. Furthermore, he never offered to turn over Jack Dempsey's championship to the South Boston man.

Teddy Hays, Dempsey's secretary, did visit Boston. He came here during the progress of the Rickard trial at Trenton. Hays talked with only three persons, other than hotel attaches, while in Boston. This writer was one of them. Hays got into communication with this writer as soon as he reached the city. We were in his company until he left for New York, six hours after arriving here. He did not see or talk to Maloney at any time. He did hold a conference with a man prominent in Democratic politics in regard to the Rickard trial. At the time Hays feared Rickard and himself would be jailed for their part in the Dempsey case. The future of Jim Maloney was not very important to him at that time.

The only offer Maloney has received from a fight promoter was made by Dan Carroll of the Fenway Club. Carroll was willing to pay Maloney $10,000 to break with McGrath and hoped to outbid Tex Rickard to get Maloney's services. Rickard will not raise his bid to $20,000.

The charge that Damon Runyon also made overture to Maloney is not based on fact.

We would suggest that if Maloney wishes to keep his name in the public prints the most successful way to do so is by going out and defeating some first class heavyweights like Battling McCreary, Charley Weinert and Jack Renault.

Meanwhile, we would suggest that our fiction sport writers read the works of O. Henry and Edgar Allen Poe for new ideas.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE hardest work that a married woman has to do is to get her husband up in the morning. He less he cook his meals, mend his clothes and clean the house, but he'll do his own sleeping.

NO matter how lazy a man may be, sleeping is something that he never turns over to his assistants.

HE wants to accomplish it all by himself.

AND no matter what time you go to bed, the best sleeping is always done in the morning.

THE average man's ambition in life is to set fourteen alarm clocks at 6 a. m. and then defy every one of them.

HE hates to be dictated to by a piece of machinery.

AND if a man won't listen to his wife, what chance has an alarm clock got?

ONE woman had to build a fire under the bed to get her husband out of it.

NOTHING can disturb him. Earthquakes rock him to sleep.

HE claims he bought his bed on the installment plan and wants to use it as much as possible before the furniture company comes and takes it back.

HIS motto is "Enjoy your bed today, for tomorrow you may be sleeping on the floor."

A CALIFORNIA man painted his bedroom windows black so that the sun wouldn't wake him up in the morning.

OF course he had to get some air in his room so he left the closet door open.

HIS wife tried getting him up by sticking pins in him. In two weeks time he was so full of holes that he looked like a microphone.

EVERY Saturday when he took a bath the water leaked right through him.

HE used ninety-seven corks stopping up the punctures.

HIS poor wife tried everything to cure him of sleeping. She even sold the bed.

THIS didn't make any difference. He put his pajamas on and stood up in the corner and went to sleep.

THOMAS EDISON only gets four hours sleep a day, but thousands of people are sleeping the other six hours for him.

Why Her Miserable Headaches, Sick Stomach and Pimply Skin Have Gone

Says Everyone Should Make INDICAN TEST Same as She Did

The Indican Test has shown Miss Fitch, as it has thousands of others, that sick headaches, broken out skin and pale complexion simply cannot be permanently relieved until the Indican is removed from the system. Indican shows there is poison being pumped into your blood, and unless you stop this poison it may cause serious sickness—perhaps chronic constipation, gastritis, or maybe even lung trouble or other serious disease. The alarming part of it is, we do not often realize the Indican is there. But when the appetite gets poor, the breath foul, when you have dizzy headaches, biliousness, sour, bloated up stomach, gas—it's a pretty sure sign you have Indican.

The best thing to do is to have a urinalysis made, and if the chemist reports Indican present, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days, and see how all these signs start to disappear.

Carter's Little Liver Pills not only make the stomach, liver and bowels work in a fine healthy manner, but also have been found to drive the Indican out of the system.

THE MAN WHO IS ALL SELF

By Lucy Lowell

HE goes through life at an oblique angle. But you can't run cross-wise of everybody without barking your elbows. So his going is rough and very slow.

He meets the world with a glare. He has a mind like a porcupine which greets all human contact with a warning jab or two. He is darkly suspicious of everything which he does not understand.

Of course he hasn't any friends. He makes acquaintances, since there is something rather likable about him despite his belligerence. But inevitably he detects some imperfection in them which destroys his confidence and enrages him. And so the acquaintances drift away, puzzled. But they soon forget all about him.

He doesn't forget, however. You'd say that he treasures every memory of human short-coming as most folks treasure the remembrance of kindness.

"I don't bother with any of them," is his constant boast. "And, if I do say it myself, nobody annoys me!"

Then his eyes gleam and a dark flush creeps over his face. "If I do say it myself" is one of his pet phrases, by the way. Indeed you'd be surprised at how often the perpendicular pronoun falls from his lips, though his verbally expressed attitude is one of rare humbleness.

Another of his watchwords is "I won't stand anybody 'running' on me." And watching from a little distance you can see him interpreting most attempts at friendliness as efforts to 'run' on him.

What does he get out of life? A stark, solitary figure, sour and discontented, what satisfaction does living bring him?

Well, he measures his reputation for "a terrible temper." Folks treat lightly when he's around, fearing the flow of vituperation always at his tongue's end. He looks upon this gingerness as the evidence of deep respect. And, so far as I can see, it's the only thing in life that pleases him!

He's an exaggerated case of egotism and his own Waterloo. But there are more or less faithful copies of him wandering around everywhere.

Do you know one? Intimately? Too intimately?

BEDTIME STORY

Broadcast Daily at 5:30 P. M. Through Station WNAC

BOBBY FOUND HE WASN'T A BIRD

By Foxy Grandpa.

BOBBY sat staring at the canary-bird's cage. It was evening, and the shaded corner where Dicky, our bird was kept, was almost dark. The little fellow had been singing at the top of his voice all day and I suppose was as tired as an opera singer after a long performance.

I looked up from my crossword puzzle several times and there was Bobby looking at Dicky as if he were charmed.

"What is it, Bobby?" I asked after I had found my word at last in the dictionary and felt as if I, too, had done a good day's work.

"Certainly it is wonderful how Dicky can perch there asleep and not fall off," answered Bobby, shaking his head.

"Well," said I, "I know a certain little boy who had better find his perch and tuck his head under his wing and go to bed."

Bobby laughed. I locked up the house and we went up stairs to bed. Bunny said it was all a matter of heredity how one slept and how one didn't and he marveled at the fact that human beings have to crawl into something and cover themselves up.

Spring came and with Spring Bobby decided that it would be nice to build a house up in the big oak tree in our side yard.

So work began. We built a kind of a platform on the lower branches and I put two rude seats in it, to make it cozy.

Bobby spent much of his time there and often carried Bunny up into his bower. They had tea parties up in the oak tree and all kinds of good times.

Whenever I missed Bobby I knew where to look for him these days. He was sure to be up in his tree. In fact he was up in his bower so much that I called him the "bird."

"I'd like to sleep out there all night," suggested Bobby one evening.

"I don't think that would do," I replied. "Bed is the best place for you. You can perch there better."

"Then I'm going to take a nap some afternoon," said the boy.

"That's different," I said.

The next afternoon was a lazy, warm one, just the kind for a nice Summer nap, so Bobby said:

"I think I will go out in my tree and take a snooze."

"Excellent idea," said I, stretching myself out in the hammock.

I was sound asleep when suddenly I heard a cry.

"Foxy Grandpa," called Bobby.

I jumped up and ran out to the Bobby getting up lamely from the ground and rubbing his little fat leg.

"What happened?" I asked, trying to comfort the little fellow, who was more frightened than hurt.

"I fell out of the tree," said Bobby.

"How did that happen?"

"I perched on the limb of the tree, like Dicky does, and went to sleep like a bird. But when I woke up I was on the ground," he murmured. "Why don't Dicky and the rest of the birds fall off when they are asleep?"

"Because they are made different," said Bobby as we went into the house for some witch hazel to bathe his bruises.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

THE word boycott has become so firmly rooted in the English language that it hardly seems possible that there was a time when it did not even exist. And what is more surprising still is the fact that less than fifty years ago this word was unknown.

To be sure, there are words that suggest its meaning, such as: ostracism, to taboo, to isolate," but not one of these words exactly fits the meaning. To boycott means to combine by refusing to associate or deal with a man, a group of men or a thing.

This word was first used toward the end of the year 1880. It was first printed capitalized in the London Daily News, for it was derived from the name of Captain Charles Cunningham Boycott. Since then, it has been incorporated into the language as a common noun.

The word sprang out of the agrarian troubles in Ireland between the years 1870 and 1881. Captain Boycott was at that time the agent of one of the English landowners and himself owned a farm of some five hundred acres. The resentment of the native Irish against the absentee landlords, as the English landowners were called, was at full tide, and accordingly, one day in 1879, Boycott found posted on his gate a notice threatening his life unless he granted a reduction in his tenants' rent.

This turned out to be merely a warning, for all but three of the tenants paid their rent on this first occasion. The next year, however, strengthened by an organization, they insisted on a 25 per cent. reduction. And this time, they really refused to pay. Boycott issued legal processes against them; but his servants, when they tried to serve them, were driven back. Finally Boycott had to put himself under police protection.

This was the beginning of the system which later became known as "boycotting." Boycott could get no laborers to work for him. His wells were thrown down and there was no one to put them up again. It even became impossible to procure any provisions for sustenance in the neighborhood. Everything had to be brought from over the sea. Aside from the personal indignities which he had to suffer, such as being hooted at and spat upon in the public roads, he could not even have his letters delivered.

Finally, volunteer Orangemen, under an escort of soldiers, came and helped Captain Boycott out of his difficulties. But the experience through which he had gone, has been immortalized by becoming fixed in the English language.

FINANCE

By E. C. Forbes

An industrial New Yorker brought to us a "revolutionary" motion before one of the most prominent clubs in New York. Like many other "exclusive" clubs, this one admitted to its library only "the best" newspapers and periodicals. Any publication daring to champion the masses was rigidly excluded.

His motion was that two Democratic newspapers, which always had been excluded be provided.

Some of the members were shocked. They indicated that the did not regard such papers as suitable for their club.

But it did not take this member long to convince them that their attitude was all wrong. He admitted that these particular papers often printed things with which he didn't agree, but he added that this was the very reason he wanted his fellow-members to read them. He emphasized that it was extremely short sighted and foolish for them not to know how other minds were working and to follow closely the activities and agitations going on among the working classes. He told them that could be quite sure that labor leaders and others personally interested in the working classes read the newspapers circulating mostly among the "classes," and that, therefore, they kept themselves fully posted on everything that was going on.

The two papers were added to the list provided for members.

The seven-day work week and the 16-day vacation are much in evidence.

I defy any thinking human being to read the pitiful communications which have come to the writer without feeling righteously indignant and without burning to do everything possible to have the injustice, the evil remedied.

Read, for example, these sentences from a very long letter sent to a seven-day worker who wrote with the bitterness which is in his heart:

"That's about the most sensible thing you wrote. I mean concerning the damnable practice of grinding it out of helpless human beings 365 days year in, year out, disrupting the home and family life and degrading humanbeings to below the status of slavery. Mules and horses get a rest. They have vacations and vacations. Helpless human beings are supposed to be built in the image of God, have nothing to expect, no time to think, no recreation, have their ambition to spend much time with their families. Always on tired, no tired. Because of more or less well possessed with a mint of slavery—docile, submissive, fearful, all to satisfy greed and greed knows no bounds.

"Where are the men of the type of the followers of the Lowly Nazarene, daring enough to free brothers from their cruel, soul and body destroying traffic in human labor? It is no wonder the masses look at the rich with envy, suspicion, all one hears is obey, obey, and be rewarded in Heaven, whatever that means.

"Take me downtown, hubby, I heard a wife say. But hubby said: 'No, I am too tired. They are divorced now.'

* * *

I would recommend the foregoing to all members of organized labor in America, to all seven-day employees, to all railway executives, to all legislators, to all ministers and others.

* * *

It is sad but true, that many employers do not realize that how they are towards their workers will determine how those workers will act towards them and towards all the rest of us when it comes to casting ballots.

* * *

President Coolidge can be counted upon to lend his support to the right kind of bill. One such bill is that of Congress, aimed at abolishing all seven-day work weeks.

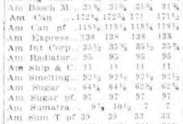
WOOD IS OUT OF TEXTILE AND PIERCE IS IN

By FRANK H. MELDON
Financial Editor

Not so many months ago William M. Wood, then president of American Woolen, was made chairman of the board of Consolidated Textile. The stock was heavily bought throughout New England following the announcement, but it seems safe to say the majority of steadily ... nothing but losses.

W. M. Wood



F. Ruppreeht

At Consolidated Textile's meeting yesterday A. G. Pierce, Jr., was elected chairman, succeeding Mr. Wood. It was stated that operations for the first 1925 quarter would show a slight profit.

Frederick K. Ruppreeht was elected president. Allen F. Johnson, A. L. Ferguson and J. K. Morrison vice-presidents and H. H. Stimson secretary-treasurer. A. F. Johnson was elected a director.

When Mr. Wood went into Consolidated Textile it was carefully explained that it was a personal venture with the big woolen company itself in no way tied up with the project. Mr. Wood's successor on Consolidated Textile's Board is present president of American Woolen.

* * *

Deception in promotion of stocks is not necessarily against the law, it would appear.

The writer does not pretend to a knowledge of legal intricacies, but he believes in exposing deception wherever a clear case appears.

He has long been warning readers that, in buying some of the so-called "common" shares of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, they were paying more than the price the actual stock sold and sells on the New York Curb Exchange, even as much as 25 per cent, or more than they need to pay. Furthermore, these shares have been lifted to buy in a way to give the impression that a "special privilege" was being offered to more or less inexperienced to understand that the Ford people were "back off" the offering.

Now appears a new radio stock in connection with which some further promotion method developments are seen.

With the selling literature comes a card. "To patrons and customers who are told that only a limited number of your purchases and good will the board of directors has set aside from its public offering a limited amount of shares at prices slightly lower than those at which the shares being offered $1.50 under the price to others."

On the face of it this one finds a request in case one does not wish to "take advantage" of the offer, to sign "release" before a witness.

The impression is that the uninformed is likely to be that they are giving up something of value when signing a "release before a witness."

If the writer gets one of these circulars he promises not even to sign the "release"—his waste basket is too handy.

EVERETT MILLS PASS SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND

Directors of Everett Mills at Lawrence have voted to omit semi-annual dividend due at this time. In 1924 a semi-annual dividend of $4 and a year-end extra was paid. This is the first time since 1897 that Everett Mills has failed to make a semi-annual payment to stockholders. The company has maintained a rate of 6 per cent. annually or better since 1906. The highest rate in a single year was 12 per cent. in 1917 after the war. In 1917 a 50 per cent. dividend was declared.

BUYING PUBLIC ON WRONG TRACK

Boston Merchant Says People Take Coolidge Slogan as Personal; Really Gov.: rnmental

Are retail merchants suffering in a business way because the general public has misinterpreted the meaning of the administration's economy in governmental expenditures, and taken it as a call upon the people of the country to economize in personal expenditures?

That seems to be the view of one leading Boston merchant. He divides the blame for the fact that business is not more brisk between this misunderstanding and the fact that so many people are purchasing automobiles on the instalment plan.

He said: "I think we all realize that what the President has meant in his economy campaign is economy in government operation and not economy in personal expenditures. He has never said, and I am sure he does not mean, that money in the savings banks, while a good thing, does not turn the wheels of industry or afford employment.

TAKE PLAN AS PERSONAL.

"I have always maintained and still believe that the difference between prosperity and hard times is largely due to the simple but difference between whether 110,000,000 people are economizing or whether they are spending their money out of hand. And I am sure the man in evidence we have had that the general public has put the wrong construction on the administration's call for economy in government operation and has construed it as meaning personal economy, which, of course, has been detrimental to business.

"During forty years of experience in the retail business I have observed that each time we find upon dull times it was because of an economy wave. This is only natural, as business is bound to be poor if people put all of their money into savings banks instead of spending it in ordinary channels.

"Money spent in a normal manner means good business, and, consequently, employment for every one.

"Money banked means people are going without hats, suits and other new articles of wearing apparel which they need.

HITS BACK AT BUSINESS.

"And this sort of economy means that the manufacturers are slow in getting their plants back on a full-time production basis.

"There is the deadly cycle, with the retailer, who is usually the last to feel a business depression, being the last one to be benefited and get back on a normal footing.

"And business has been hurt to a considerable degree by the introduction of the instalment plan in automobile sales. People who rush into the purchase of a car on the instalment plan, over and above the cost of tires, gas and general upkeep more than it was represented and have difficulty in keeping up with the payments. Naturally they decide to economize and we, the retail merchants feel it more than all others.

"The other day a wealthy woman was about to purchase from us an expensive set of glassware when she spied a much more inexpensive set.

COOLIDGE HER MENTOR.

"When the salesgirl told her she didn't believe she wanted anything as cheap as the second set she replied, 'Oh, yes I do. I see where President Coolidge is economizing, and I guess if he can do it, I can.'

"That is but one example of the way we are made to pay for the fact that the public has misinterpreted the stories of the administration's economy program, which are constantly coming out of Washington.

"I, for one, am willing to wager that President Coolidge didn't have the slightest idea that such chain of did; that he is not economizing in his personal expenditures any more than I am, and that when he launched his government program of economy he did not expect or hope that the public would react to it in the way it has."

HOTELS, RESORTS AND TRAVEL

WEATHER JUST RIGHT FOR CAPE TRIP

An auto trip down the Cape is enjoyable much earlier than the more northern routes and already you will find green lawns and flowering shrubs blending their fragrance with the scrubby pines and all the other beautiful woodsy odors characteristic of the Cape.

Falmouth makes a nice objective if you are not afraid of a little mileage. Get up early and take the shore route through Weymouth past Queen Anne's Corner to Hanover Four Corners to Marshfield; from Marshfield to Plymouth. Here, of course, you will want to take time to go down to see Plymouth Rock and maybe to go through the interesting museum where you will find hundreds of relics. From Plymouth to the Cape across the Bridge over the Cape Cod Canal, straight along past Pocasett and North Falmouth into Falmouth.

PERFECT ROADS FOR TRIP.

Sometime when you have saved up a real appetite and want to make a modest investment in some real food, give the bus an extra polish tuck in the best-girth-the-world start out for Wright's Pudding in Wrentham. It is about as sours drive over perfect roads through the Cemetery, Attleboro, Norwood and Walpole, and you cannot probably miss the great duck farm, the largest of its kind in this country, with thousands of ducks quacking their welcome. And it is a real welcome that you will find at Wright's Pudding Inn.

DINNER PERFECTION.

The goodness of the duck dinner is beyond the power of mere mortal to describe. From the crabmeat cocktail, through the great serving of roast duck, with all the trimmings, grilled sweet potatoes and preserved watermelon, up to the last taste, Landlord Pinto's own special ice cream, with the equalled blend of cheese, the meal is absolute perfection.

If you are not already acquainted with Weber Duck Inn, you have missed something in motor inns that is tremendously worth while.

SHOW TICKETS WILL BE EXTRA JINGLE PRIZES

Extra prizes!

Here they are, Jingle fans! Five pairs of best orchestra seats for "Baby Blue" which opens at the Wilbur Theatre next Monday night, will be awarded for clever "last lines" to today's Limerick. These, in addition to the regular prize of $25 for the best "last line" and fifteen $1 prizes.

Those who have seen "Baby Blue" in other cities say it is a charming dance-comedy with musical setting. The book is by Roland Oliver and Charles Dickson, while the lyrics and music are by Harold Christy, a widely known composer of popular songs.

Irene Dunne is the Prima Donna of "Baby Blue." Boston Theatregoers remember her fine work in "Irene," "Lollipop" and "The Cling Vine." Miss Dunne has a delightful soprano voice, unusually fascinating personality and is an exceptionally good dancer. In "Baby Blue" she plays the role of "Millie," a runaway flapper from Vermont. The entire play has a New England atmosphere and, therefore, should be of unusual interest to theatregoers of this section.

James P. Slattery of City Hall avenue, is sending thanks for an award of $1.00 he wrote:

Mollie E. Priest, of Rossetter street, Dorchester, gives thanks as follows:

When sending in my last 'line' I do so with utmost confidence that it is a sure winner. When prizes are announced I find my Jingle is a 'Jangle' and that someone has outwitted me. Am still striving and hope to land that there big one before the contest closes."

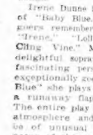
SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up everything well, that I wrote to you. My husband got me the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home that night. In a few days I began to improve and I have never taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the hospital and be operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is." — Mrs. A. Colley, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

Dawes Speaks at Cross Purposes Here

In his Boston speeches, Vice-President Dawes again emerged from his political hermitage.

There is something unusual in the Dawes evangelism for senatorial speed, not only because most Vice-Presidents have been very quiet, but because this declaration of war upon the methods of a body over which he is chosen to preside is in such virile contrast with the Vice-President's utter official helplessness.

While weaving oratorical spells, gentlemen are given wide license, but when the spell is past and the orator's remarks present themselves for cold analysis, the most glaring inconsistencies often appear.

So it is with the Vice-President's speeches at Boston. In one of them he appealed to his hearers "to maintain the ideals for which our forefathers died," and in the other speech he lampooned the Senate for debating too much.

Now it just happens that the one "ideal" for which our forefathers stood as a stone wall was protection from One Man Power, and it also happens that in the United States the greatest protection against One Man Power is a United States Senate with unlimited debate.

Our forefathers were afraid of the power of the President in their early day when the President's power was nothing compared with what it is now.

When they deliberated in the making of the Constitution, they were filled with horrible phantoms of executive tyranny. In fact, those pioneers suspected everybody in public office. Just out of the hands of tyranny, they did not relish the possibility of flying from the frying-pan of a British king into the fire of an American autocrat.

If those Constitution makers could have foreseen our day with its intense partisanship, if they could have foreseen our day when "party regularity" is held more sacred than regularity toward the spirit of the Constitution; if they could have foreseen our day when the President of the United States has more power than any other public officer in this world, it is safe to say that many more restrictions would now surround the presidential office.

If they could have foreseen a time when the President would be regarded as the commander-in-chief of a political party, rather than as the non-partisan chief magistrate of everybody—and this is the way "The Fathers" visualized the presidential office—they would probably have despaired of erecting a free government with a president in it.

And so Vice-President Dawes contradicted himself when he asked his afternoon audience to destroy the independence of the Senate and leave the country exposed to executive usurpation, and then, in the evening, asked his audience to stand by "the ideals of our forefathers."

Public and Private Schools

Parents' Rights Should Be Respected

Oregon passed a law that would abolish private schools and religious schools, permitting only the public schools.

That law was set aside, and the Governor of the State forbidden to enforce it by a decision of a Federal Court.

Common sense should welcome that decision, although the question will go to a higher court.

The public school is the BEST school. The child that does not go to the public school, whether he be sent to the rich man's school, a religious school, or any other school, lacks the BEST start that an American child can have.

But it is the RIGHT OF THE PARENTS to educate their children in accordance with their wishes and beliefs, provided they give them SOUND education.

If the father believes that the expensive private school is better for his children than the public school, he has the RIGHT to choose the private school.

If he believes that it is necessary for his children to absorb religion with arithmetic and history, and to go to a religious school, he has the RIGHT to send them to a religious school.

There should be no compulsion of any kind, except that no taxes, no public funds, should be contributed to anything except the public school system, that all children should receive a sound education, and the public schools should be made, more and more emphatically, the best schools in the world.

Investigate—But

That Won't Help Stockholders

Louis Seibold says the failure and receivership of the St. Paul Railroad are to be investigated by the government. It is a big failure, amounting to eight hundred millions.

According to Seibold, the government were ready to help keep the railroad going, and stockholders in the road are puzzled by a bankruptcy postponed until just after Congress adjourned.

Railroad men will probably explain that all Northwestern railroads have suffered. Regulations imposed upon the railroads did a great deal to send freight by water through the Panama Canal, and thus destroy the railroads' profits.

Besides, any competent financier will tell you that if you can't make any money by RUNNING a railroad you can always make a little something by putting it into bankruptcy, and assessing stockholders. That is what they're for.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

LOVE is a poem only when your hearts beat to the same meter, and your thoughts happen to rhyme—and even then it is apt to turn static occasionally.

Helen Rowland

Even an unpunctuated husband somehow seems to "punctuate" a woman's day, by mussing the breakfast hour a little more definite, and the dinner hour a little less hazard.

* * *

What keeps a bachelor safely single is not his inability to fall in love, but his agility in catching his balance, just in time to crawl out of it.

* * *

The average man seldom considers putting a love affair on a "higher plane" until he has tried working it out on all the other planes.

* * *

Breaking a man's heart is not a cruelty, but a kindness; a man's heart, like his teeth, has to be made to ACHE before he is conscious of its existence.

* * *

A woman may love a man for his "brute strength" or even for his weaknesses, for his fascinating worldliness or for his plain, homely virtues—but she has to love him in SPITE OF his Adam's apple.

* * *

A man is never interested in a heart that is marked "To Let"; he prefers to make himself miserable by trying to squeeze into one that is marked "No Vacancies."

* * *

Marriage is the point at which a man stops waiting for a woman to make up her mind, and begins waiting for her to make up HIS mind.

* * *

Most men seem to think that a girl should be perfectly satisfied with a "part-time" love and a sort of cooperative interest in their evenings and affections these busy days.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

SO many rooms in life's great house wherein the soul may go, bright rooms where sun and song carouse, dim rooms where lights are low; gay rooms to all the world thrown wide, decked out for men to see, and gracious chambers where abide the joys of memory. But in my house of life one room surpassing all the rest; there beauty lingers, and perfume; a place supremely blest. There song's enchantments never cease and softly, hour by hour, the harmonies of perfect peace across the stillness flower. For in that sweet and sunlit place, though all the world divides us hand from hand and face from face, your presence still abides. In life's great house my soul can go a-roving, room by room; but in that spot alone I know such loveliness and bloom.

OPPOSITION NEEDED FOR SOLIDITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHEN smoke is near the ground, that is, when it is just rising, it is in rather compact form, but as it rises it dissipates. The atmospheric pressure upon it is not so great. This calls to mind the general law that the compactness and hardihood of any movement depends upon the amount of opposition to it.

Rulers have known for long that war is sometimes a good policy for the state. It serves to unite the country in a common bond of defence. Very often, therefore, when a country is divided and full of dissatisfaction it may be united by engaging in war. Local differences are forgotten in the common danger.

The more prosperous a country is and the farther it is removed from danger, the more divided it is likely to become. Bret Harte, in his "Outcasts of Poker Flats," shows how beings of the most contradictory nature are united by a common danger, and the same thing is manifested in one of Richard Harding Davis' stories.

In fact, every movement needs opposition in order to solidify it.

The early Christians were probably a very compact band of believers because they were so persecuted.

Often divorce arises, and estrangement, when a couple has become rich. So long as they were poor they were drawn close together by the pressure of poverty. When that pressure has been removed they have drifted apart.

There is nothing like a good healthy enemy to invigorate any policy. In a common danger people of any organization are drawn together.

The best and most effective propaganda among the working people, driving them to a solidified class, is where that class is under constant pressure. Where there is liberty and freedom there is not so much class spirit. For this reason you find the working class much more compact and its ideas much more vigorous in Europe than in America. There the pressure upon it is great. In America the pressure is removed and anyone has the privilege and right to go into any class he wants to.

Blocs arise in the Senate of the United States and in the House of Representatives because of pressure upon a certain class, because of real or fancied injustice that is done to it. This pressure serves to solidify and maintain the bloc.

Liberty and opportunity are favorable to individualism, while lack of opportunity and absolute liberty tend to push people together. They feel that they must stand together in order to obtain their rights.

When smoke is near the point of issuance it takes compact shape, but when it rises it dissipates.

WHERE THE ECLIPSE PLANETS ARE NOW

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE popular imagination was strongly impressed by the appearance of Jupiter, Venus and Mercury, in the darkened heavens, westward from the hidden sun, during the total eclipse of last January. Hardly the beauty of the glorious corona itself carried off the palm of admiration from "the three planets."

I am still getting letters about them. One young woman in New York enthusiastically declares that the view gave her an entirely new conception of the wonderful mechanism of the solar system, which seemed to have been opened before her eyes with startling realism.

The latest letter on the subject is from a man who saw the planets and was greatly interested and surprised by them, but curiously enough has not yet heard what they were.

Since so much attention has been drawn to these planets through the spectacular part that they played during the most popularly successful eclipse on record, it may be worth while to tell what they have been doing since, and where they are now.

With a slight aid from the imagination the reader may read the whole story in our picture. Only the orbits of Mercury, Venus and the Earth are shown, because Jupiter's distance from the sun is more than five times that of the Earth.

First look at the situation at the time of the eclipse in January, when the Earth's position was as indicated near the top of the chart. The broken lines show the line of sight from the Earth to the various planets. The revolution of all being from west to east, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter all appeared, not far apart, west of the sun.

Next, putting yourself in the position of the Earth in April, see what a change has been brought about in less than three full months by the movement of the four planets concerned, with different velocities in their orbits.

The line of sight from the Earth to Jupiter has not greatly changed, Jupiter's movement being relatively slow, but the direction of Venus and Mercury, with respect to the background of the sky, is about at right angles to the direction in January.

Yet, the motions have been so combined that as seen from the Earth, Mercury and Venus are still very far apart. But during the interval Mercury has made almost a complete revolution around the sun, while Venus has made only about one-third of a revolution.

But those planets appeared far west of the sun at the eclipse, while now both are in such apparent close proximity to the sun that neither is visible.

Mercury will pass between the Earth and the Sun on April 19, going from the evening into the morning sky, while Venus (seeming to us to move in the opposite direction with reference to the sun) will pass behind the sun on April 24, to emerge in the evening sky.

Jupiter in the meanwhile, forging steadily ahead in his far-off orbit, has passed from the western to the eastern part of the constellation Sagittarius and early in May will rise in the east about midnight.

It may help in understanding the cause of the relative changes of position of the three planets, with which so many persons seem to have made their first acquaintance during the eclipse, if we recall that Mercury takes only about eighty-eight days to make a journey around the sun, Venus about 225 days, the Earth 365 days and Jupiter more than 4,332 days, or nearly twelve years!
